Today

To the War Department.
Good News for Big.
4 Lame Feet.
Northcliffe's Success.

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright 1922, by Star Co.

To the War Department: You are the boss of rivers flowing into the ocean. Your attention is called to the fact that the road builders are filling up with sand the mouth of the Manasquan River in New Jersey. That river, properly used, could be made a refuge for ships in heavy weather, and most useful as an inland harbor in time of war.

Closing the mouth and ruining the outlet is stupid, and it's your business to stop it.

With the strikes apparently dying down, corporations winning, labor losing, as might have been expected, the news is GOOD NEWS for those that deal in money on a big scale.

For instance, there is a rumor of a 200 per cent. dividend on Gulf Oil.

The merger of Bethlehem and Lackawanna Steel is completed, with 77,000,000 preferred stock, $2,000,000 common stock.

There will soon be a big merger in Chicago. The tariff makers are going ahead, with duties as high as $50 per cent. The message to big industry is "If there is anything you want, step up and ask for it."

For the little people who don't count, now that the war is over, prices are rising. Retail prices are up, wholesale prices are up. Food is dear in the city. The farmer doesn't get enough to pay for raising it. Something happens between producer and consumer.

Germany's money has gone to smash. A statistician says Germany is far richer than France and that's so, as regards actual wealth. But if your money is worthless, your wealth doesn't help. It's like having a big, powerful horse with four lame feet.

What was the most important factor in Lord Northcliffe's success?

Some important Americans have paid tribute to his power, now that he is dead. A good many little Americans have cheerfully advertised themselves in similar tributes.

Northcliffe's success was based 50 per cent. on the fact that he was not afraid of anything. Seventy per cent. on the fact that he knew the things you must NOT DO, and kept away from them. To know what NOT to do is a great part of success, especially in newspaper work.

In the first reference to Lord Northcliffe's death in this column your attention was called to the fact that Northcliffe lived and worked FOR ENGLAND. He was no lop-sided, sloppy study of any foreign land or people.

The cabled report of the editorial published about Northcliffe in his own newspaper, the London Times, states that TO THE BRITISH EMPIRE HE WAS DEVOTED HEART AND SOUL.

That's what every country needs: powerful men devoted HEART AND SOUL to that country.

We have too many so-called "statesmen" in the United States whose hearts seem to be in England or some other European country, their stomachs and their pockets in the United States.

Frank Munsey publishes the letter of a gentleman who wonders why unions do not incorporate. If they were incorporated, says he, their members "could learn what becomes of their dues."

Possibly, but the New Haven Railroad is incorporated and

MEETING TUESDAY MAY END STRIKE

Prompt Ratification of Agreement by Leaders on Both Sides Is Expected

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.—Anthracite coal operators today offered to 150,000 striking mine workers the opportunity of settling the wage question by submitting the matter to the Anthracite Board of Conciliation.

New York, Aug. 19 (By International News Service).—The understanding reached between the committee of railway executives and representatives of the railway brotherhoods for settlement of the shopmen's strike will quickly be translated into a definite settlement ending the strike upon a basis of a "gentleman's agreement," it was believed here today.

Executives representing the 143 railroads of the United States will meet here, probably on Tuesday, to give their answer to the proposition submitted by the brotherhoods in behalf of the striking shopmen. The "gentlemen's agreement" will restore the seniority rights of the strikers without saying so in plain words. This is expected to reconcile the "die-hards" among the railway presidents.

It is expected the coal strike will be ended in all fields by the time the shopmen are back at work and the heavy movement of coal along with the transportation of the gigantic crops will furnish enough work to keep all the shopmen busy, including those who were taken on during the strike and strikers who were taken back to their old places.

It is believed the rail strike will have ended and all men will be at work by one week from today.

Congress Leaders at Work on Bills

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Senate and House leaders were rushing today to get under the wire first with the legislation recommended by President Harding to fill the nation's empty coal bins and prevent their being emptied again by a strike.

There were various plans to meet the whole situation and for a "temporary national coal agency, with capital to purchase, sell and distribute coal."

Meetings of the Senate and House Interstate Commerce Committees were scheduled for Monday to grapple with the legislative problems forced on Congress by the coal strike. Profiteering in coal and the piracy of a serious coal shortage already felt in many parts of the coun-

Sally Kayos Her "Steady's" Rival

Lands a Haymaker for the Count at a Quiet Medford Dancing Party

SARAH FRANCES DOYLE

Sweetheart of "Tug" Wilson who is doing time for shooting a park policeman, precipitated a battle between the Wilson and George Kelley gangs when unaided she knocked out Kelley in the middle of a dance while the policeman on guard was absent for a moment.

'WINNIE' COLE'S LOVE NOTES

DOYLE GIRL IN A FIST FIGHT

Knocks Out "Tug" Wilson's Rival at Medford Dance and a Gang Battle Follows

"Sally" Doyle, sweetheart of "Tug" Wilson, the spooning gunman, packs a mean wallop.

She proved it to several hundred who crowded Pitman's Dance Hall, Medford, on Thursday night, when she swung from the floor and landed a haymaker flush on the jaw of George Kelley, causing the lights to go out for George.

And then ensued a bloody combat between members of "Tug" Wilson's gang and friends of Kelley.

The Kelley-Doyle feud is of long-standing, due, according to members of Wilson's gang, to derogatory remarks made by Kelley concerning the courage of "Tug" Wilson. "Sally" Doyle, or Sarah Frances Doyle, her real name, was incensed that Kelley should make such remarks about a man who is in no position to defend himself, as he is now doing time for the shooting of Metropolitan Park Policeman Francis J. Philbrick.

On Wednesday the crisis of the feud was reached, and the staging of it was on Summer street, Boston. "Sally" was walking up Summer street when a young man in a hurry, attempting to pass her, pushed her to one side. She looked up and recognized Kelley and hostility flamed within her.

"You need a traffic cop in front of you all the time so that you can get around the city without knocking people down," she said.

"Shut up, you tramp," was the retort courteous of Mr. Kelley, at least according to "Sally."

Due to the congestion of traffic this exchange of personalities ended the incident. But only for the time being, for in her heart Sally Doyle had declared war.

THE BIG MOMENT.

Her big moment came on the following night in Pitman's dance hall, Winthrop square, Medford. Escorted by four members of "Tug" Wilson's gang, Sally was having a lovely time when she noticed Kelley at the other end of the hall.

She immediately made it known to the gangsters that it was her war, and that she didn't need any help.

The men, cooler than Sally, pointed out that a "harness bull" was stationed at the door, and Sally's judgment made her bide her time when she saw the policeman watchfully waiting.

At 9:50, however, the policeman was forced to leave the hall for a short time while he pulled a box. What he really did was to pull a bone, for this was the moment Sally was waiting for. She cleverly manoeuvred her dancing partner up

BRIDE IS MISSING; CASH, TOO

John Dart, "Perfect Lover," to Ask Warrant as Romance Shatters to Bits

The third act of the dizzy nuptial romance in which John Dart of the South End is one of the principal figures has been staged.

Mrs. Martha Clem Dart, his wife, has left him, taking with her her three children by a former marriage, and, according to Dart, more than $1,400 of his money.

He has asked the police to find her, and says he will swear out a warrant for her arrest for larceny.

The two became acquainted last January, when Mrs. Dart, a comely widow of thirty-nine years, was waiting on table in a restaurant. They announced their engagement a few weeks later.

JILTED IN FIRST ACT.

Then in March came Act No. 1 of the domestic drama. Mrs. Dart, who was then Mrs. Clem, told her suitor the engagement was all off, and announced to newspapers that "John doesn't know how to love."

A couple of months later, however, came Act No. 2. Completely reconciled, the two went to the Clarendon Street Baptist Church and were married. Mrs. Dart told reporters that she had been entirely mistaken about John's inability to love.

"I do love him," she said. "I'll say I do. He is really the perfect lover."

Then, just one week ago, came Act No. 3. John was out in Roxbury, working at his trade of carpenter. Mrs. Dart hired a taxi, took her three children and was driven to the North Station. She took with her, the husband complains, $1,000 which they had just received for the sale of their home at No. 3 Upton street, $300 of his savings and a $50 Liberty bond.

Her comment on this third act is voiced in a note which she left with the landlady gave to Dart, heading:

LEAVES FAREWELLL NOTE.

"Dear John:

TAKE $100,000 RUM, 15 MEN AND YACHT

New Rochelle, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Liquor valued by the police at $100,000, motor-driven yacht, three automobiles and fifteen prisoners were bagged in a raid on a coal company's dock.

The police swooped down on the dock as the crew of the yacht Esi was unloading its cargo. The fifteen men tried to get away, but for almost an hour the police combed the various coal pockets on the pier, finally getting all of them except the captain.

Three of the men said they were James Murphy of Larchmont, William Baldwin, a Darien, Ct., inventor, and John Johnson of Philadelphia. They said the yacht's home port was Washington, D. C.

BONUS TO PASS SOON, MacNIDER BELIEVES

Washington, Aug. 19.—All signs point to speedy passage of the soldiers bonus bill, Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, declared to International News Service today following a series of conferences with legislative leaders at the Capitol.

"I spent yesterday listening to what senators thought of the bill and I was delighted with what I heard" said MacNider. "The situation is excellent and we expected immediate and favorable action. I'm sure the bill will be passed by an overwhelming majority."

According to present legislative plans the bonus bill will be called up in the House on Monday and rushed to passage.

"Eat My Dust!" Is Answer to Two Bandits

Haverhill, Aug. 19.—Fred Kimball of Lawrence, a Lawrence special police officer, today frustrated an attempted holdup by two armed men near Artichoke bridge on the road between Lawrence and Salisbury Beach.

Kimball told the police he was driving alone, and as he reached the bridge he found a touring car drawn up across the road. Two armed men jumped out from behind it, flashed their guns and told him to stop. Instead, the officer stepped on the gas, turned the machine and left the would-be holdup artists in a cloud of dust.

PROMISES IDEAL WEATHER TOMORROW

"An ideal day" is the promise of the weatherman for tomorrow. LYNN POLICE INSPECTOR FOUND GUILTY

Inspector Roger Dwyer of the Lynn police was suspended for seven days without pay after being found guilty today of insubordination. Dwyer disobeyed orders in the disposition of a diamond ring and $60 in cash, the property of George Denihigan of Watertown. Denihigan was sentenced to two and a half years for theft. Chief Inspector Kane ordered Dwyer to return the ring and money to Attorney James J. Foley, who represents Denihigan. Dwyer put the money in a Lynn bank and after it was deposited in the name of Dwyer's wife.

Southport, N. C. Aug. 19.—On account of unfavorable storm conditions the seaplane Sampaio Correia, bound from New York to Natal, which arrived here yesterday from Manteo, was unable to continue the flight southward this morning, Lieutenant Hinton, pilot of the craft, said he would leave just as soon as weather conditions cleared.

RED HEAD SALOME IS SAD

Boy Pal Has Not Written for 48 Hours; and She Likes Him a Lot

Winsome Winnie Cole, hero of a near-suicide on the banks of Muddy River, for the love of an auburn-haired dancer in "Love and Kisses," is still missing—at least so far as Miss Maude Lydiate, the dancer, is concerned.

"He has even stopped writing me," declared the red-headed little dancer at the Wilbur Theatre, her grey eyes clouded with tear drops which threatened to spoil her skilful makeup completely.

"And since I have been in town this is the longest period—forty-eight hours—that he ever left me without word. I begin to suspect there may be another girl in the case.

"If he doesn't show up or communicate with me soon, I shall be tempted to leave the show and go looking for him.

"For despite anything I have said I really think a lot of Winnie Cole—even though I have no idea of marrying him. But I have no idea of marrying anyone else either. There may be some consolation for him in that."

Cole, hero of a previous romance with a Ziegfeld Follies girl, created

MINNESOTA FIGHTS 300 FOREST FIRES

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 19.—After a night of virtual calm, men fighting the 300 odd forest fires, spread over 200,000 acres in northern Minnesota, set out today to attempt to get a strangle hold on the blazes. A light rain fell early today. The most serious fire today continued to be the one in the vicinity of Kelsey, 45 miles north of here.

some stir in the Back Bay police by leaving a coat, containing a "cold mitten" note from the "Love and Kisses" dancer on the brink of Muddy River. His father discovered him safe asleep at home. How his coat got to the river bank is still an unsolved mystery.

"I hope," continued the pretty little dancer, indicating a pile of letters in her strongbox in the dressing room, "that these are not the last we will hear of Winnie. For aside from his sayings matrimonial moments he was a whirlwind boy friend."

And by way of evidence, she offered some of his letters.

"Loving Angel" is the way one began. It continued:

"How is the light of my life today? I have carried your last letter next to my heart. When I think what a dear loyal girl you are, and then look at myself, I feel disgraced. You are so good, so pure, my guiding star. Your picture is before me all day, and at night it is in my dreams, so you see you are with me all the time.

"Yours till the stars shall vanish forever. WIN."

The convention sign of "kisses," crudely scrawled X's—decorate the letter beneath the signature.

Another epistle from the romantic Romeo of the synthetic hooch read: "My Only Love:

"Soon I shall see you again. I feel cannot make that moment too quick for me. You say your birthday is not far off. Well, my little girl, shall have the best present in the world. No, I shall not tell you now. Perhaps you know, for I know you can read my mind. The moment will never come too quick for me when you will be wholly mine. Mine to hold, to worship, to adore. Will I love you any more? I doubt it, dear one. My love for you is like a raging torrent. It can never be checked but flows onward ever more. Write me soon, honey.

"Your own, "WIN."

"RED-HEADED SALOME."

"My Red-Haired Salome" was the way the ardent swain started another letter; while a fourth began "Smokums."

"Parties" and hooch figured in both:

"My Red-Haired Salome:

"I know that you are frantic waiting for word from me, and I know that if I did not sit up tonight and drop you this small note you would not sleep from worrying about me. But, honey, I love you and I want to say that that I could not sleep myself without writing. I am going to empty my heart, just to show you that you are always in my mind.

"You know what it is to try and write after you have been on a party, and the old head is all kinked up. Well, that's the case with me just now, but I am going to write just the same so that you will have word from me, know that I still do think of you only, and so can have peaceful dreams.

"Don't worry, dear, the party was not a very wild one, and there were no girls present. Just a few friends of mine at the club. Of course, although we had a good time I didn't enjoy it as much as I would have had you been with me. But those days are days coming, babe, when things will be different, and we will have our own little nest, in some quiet spot. And then, old kid, what cozy parties you and I will stage!

"I was both glad and sorry to hear that you met some boy friends of mine in New Haven. It makes me jealous to think of anyone else being with you at all. Of course I know that it was merely a case of your sitting opposite Jim at dinner, but even so it makes me a bit sore.

"Dropped into Lenzi's the other night, and Oh, it seemed so lonesome without your red hair shining in the light there. In fact I can't make any place where you and I have been together seem the same without you.

"This town is about the same. Same old dum doras parading on Tremont and Boylston streets. And it locks up for the night at 10 P. M. as ever.

"If you are too busy to write me don't hesitate to write, as I will be anxious and lonely until I hear from you. With all the love in the world, and a million kisses, WINNIE."

OH! BOY! HAIG AND HAIG!

"Smokums: I am back in my camp. Sorry that I am that I am not with you, even though in a furnished room. Went on a party last night, but have nothing but regrets today. Had no fun at all, for my mind was absolutely a blank so far as the party went, my thoughts being all for you. I am looking forward, dear, to our next meeting, which I hope to be able to celebrate in suitable style with a bottle of Haig and Haig. And there will be plenty of Hilo scented cigars for you, hon.

"I will be the audience, and you can bet that no big audience my honey ever faced has been half so enthusiastic as I will be. I can imagine that radiant, wonderful smile of yours, revealing those wonderful teeth, now. Gee. It makes me sore with envy of those actors in your company.

"You know, dear, I am serious in what I have said about going on the stage. I know I would succeed. I know I am a good actor, and can wear clothes with the best of them. Am confident I would make you proud of your Winnie Boy if things happen so that I can arrange a stage career. Of course the way things are here now it seems out of the question. But we shall see.

"I have your photograph—the one of you with your big curls before you had your tresses bobbed—before me now, and it makes me want to cry, that you are so far away.

"Please write to me as soon as you get this. Even a 'ine or two from you cheers me up wonderfully. Lots of love and an ocean of kisses.

"WIN."

LETTERS END DESPAIR.

Blessed Maudie — Received your sweet letter this a. m. and you have no idea how happy it made me. I was in the depths of despair. Now everything is O. K. and I can face the world with a smile. Honey, if I could only hold you tight in my arms, and look into your deep tander eyes—eyes so good and true. Faithful to the end. I have told this letter to kiss you goodnight.

Love to the end of time,

WIN.

Darling Sweetheart—I saw a girl on the street that reminded me somewhat of you. Somewhat, but it stopped there. Oh dear heart there is not another girl like you in this world. I know that for I roamed this old world over and over, looking for you, and finally I found you. What a wonderful world this is after all, dear heart. We have the love of each other, what more could we ask?

Always yours,

WINSLOW.

My Own Sweetheart—I had a dream the other night, and it was a horrible one, too. I dreamed that you had tired of me. Think of that! But when I awoke and found that it was only a dream, what a wonderful feeling that was. You will never tire of me, will you, dear? You are the whole world to me, more than life itself. I love you, dear one, more than I l[illegible] any one in all my life. G[illegible] till we meet again. Your [illegible]

WATER A PERIL, MAYOR O. K.'S SALE OF BEER

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 19.—Every cya, or most of them, in this city was today turned in the direction of the saloons which Volstead's law, has not yet put out of business by starvation.

Mayor Joseph Cauffel, saving drawn a few bugs and worms out of the faucet at his home, has issued an edict that the city's water is dangerous to the lives of the inhabitants and as a remedy he has officially announced that all the saloons can go as far as they like selling beer. The only proviso the Mayor makes is that the beer be the real goodec no home brew or near beer stuff.

Drug stores have been advised that they can go the limit selling ale, if it's cold. The Mayor positively prohibits the sale of moonshine and all adulterated beverages. It must be the genuine stuff or nothing. The city's motor cycle police squad was turned into Paul Revere flying about town notifying the saloon men to get busy. Soon there was a horde of barkeeps at City Hall anxious to ascertain if the Mayor was kidding. He swored he was most serious.

So joyful are the hotels that they have sworn to chase all the bootleggers out of the city.

Unofficial reports today said beer was being sold. Saloon men are a bit cautious, fearful that prohibition sleuths will put an end to the Mayor's scheme.

GIVES BLOOD TO WIFE WHO FLED

Cleveland, O., Aug. 19.—In an effort to save the life of his seventeen-year-old wife, who deserted him two months ago, Earl Sandals today gave his blood in a transfusion operation at a hospital. The wife, Martha, mother of his eight-months-old baby, may live as a result.

Mrs. Sandals, who, it is said, had been brooding over having left her husband, shot herself in the abdomen. Hearing of her condition, and that blood transfusion was the only hope of saving her life, Sandals begged surgeons to accept his blood.

McCORMICK TO BUILD BRIDE OPERA HOUSE

Copyright, 1922, by Evening American Publishing Co. and Cosmopolitan News Service.

Paris, Aug. . —An opera house glittering in all the artistic grandeur that fortune can buy, standing as a monument of romance and love just a block from one of the world's gayest and most beautiful boulevards, with a myriad of bright lights flashing—the "Walska" to its silken clad patronage.

This is to become the magnificent possession of Harold F. McCormick, multi-millionaire of Chicago, in honor of his second wife, the former Ganna Walska, according to information just revealed here.

And all Paris, accustomed to things striking and unusual, is agog with gossip over the report. By many it is taken to mean Mr. McCormick and his bride are going to be of Paris rather than the United States.

Mr. McCormick is said to have leased the Theatre Du Mentagne for his wife. The opera star plans to give a "music festival" in the play house in September. She will have a prominent place on the festival program.

The new opera house, which Mr. McCormick plans to build in the name of his bride, promises to be one of the most gorgeous of its kind in the world. Lucien Muratore, famous tenor, is to be made director of the "Walska."

alongside of Kelley, and then it was all over.

WHAM!

Sally slipped from the arms of her partner, drew her right from the floor and Wham!

Curtains for Kelley.

Kelley's friends immediately rushed up and the "Tug" Wilson followers were close at Sally's heels. For a time there was a short but furious melee. Then Harry Pitman, who conducts the Dance Hall, and Mrs. Alice C. Twombley acted as arbiters.

They convinced the Tug Wilson gang that police courts were no place for them, and so when the policeman, all unconscious of what had been going on in his absence, returned, Sally and her retinue had left the hall.

Frightened girls stepped down from the places where they had sought refuge, while men, who had been cowering under tables came out from beneath tables and things. But there was little more dancing that night. Nobody was in the mood for it.

SALLY'S EPISODES.

"Sally" Doyle first came into public notice when she was arrested with "Tug" Wilson, after the spooning gunman had shot Officer Philbrick when the policeman attempted to arrest him.

During Wilson's imprisonment before his trial the girl remained staunch to him, declaring that she was Tug's girl, and that she would wait for him to come out of prison regardless of how long the law demanded that he be confined.

Up to the present time she has continued to remain true to her gunman-lover.

thousands of old ladies in New England, robbed of every dollar invested in the road, never knew exactly what happened.

There are more ways than one of skinning the cat, and the public, and "incorporating" is one of the most efficient ways.

Capablanca will win the chess tournament of the world, probably. Other names in the tournament are Alechine, of Russia; Vidmar, of Jugo-Slavia; Judow, of Russia; Maroczy, of Hungary; Rubinstein, of Poland; Tartakover, of Russia.

You need not mourn because you recognize no American name in that list of world's greatest chess players.

A dozen Americans might be in it, but fortunately for this country, their minds have been on machinery, industrial construction. Build up the greatest chess attacks or openings, and you have built nothing. Build a new idea of an automobile, and you have done something. Chess never made any brain more efficient and it has ruined thousands, wasting energy that should have been productive.

One interesting word comes from that tournament. When Capablanca was asked how he "trained" for it, the reporter supposed that the reply would describe concentration on chess books, chess theories, etc. "I walked out into the country and into the air and sunshine to keep my health good," was Capablanca's reply.

That's the best training for mental effort.

HEAVY FIRING IN STREETS OF DUBLIN

By the Associated Press.

Dublin, Aug. 19.—The most heavy firing all last night throughout the city of Dublin between national army forces and Republican irregulars.

Free State troops on patrol duty were fired at by snipers and machine gunners, who attacked national army posts in various parts of the city.

The plans of the irregulars, however, were frustrated by the vigilance of the national troops, it was stated today.

A spirited fight of four hours' duration occurred early today between national troops and Republican irregulars at Dungoodley, on the Louth-Armagh border. The Republicans finally fled across the border with Free Staters in pursuit.

By International News Service.

Dublin, Aug. 19.—The Republican Irregular army has been broken up and serious fighting is now at an end, commandants of the Free State army declared today.

Free State troops attacked and captured the village of Kilmorney, taking twenty-seven prisoners.

Both Macroon and Millstreet in County Cork have been captured from the Irregulars.

The advance of the Free Staters continues through the West, Practically all of County Louth has been cleared of Irregulars, except for guerrilla bands in the mountains.

Dart declared she had confided to a friend, one Al Guthrie of No. 623 Tremont street, that she "only married John for his money, for a home, and for some clothes." Her post-nuptial actions, he said, bore this out.

Dart was reminded of her earlier statement about his lack of knowledge of the ways of love.

"Humph," he said. "I've loved better women than her."

Dart says he believes his wife has gone away with some other man, although he declares she never showed any affection for anyone while she was living with him. She has friends in Dayton, O., he said, and he has asked the police there to look for her.

The husband is now living at No. 300 Columbus avenue.

FINANCIAL CRISIS IN AUSTRIA INTENSE

Vienna, Aug. 19 (By the Associated Press).—The financial crisis in Austria is daily growing in intensity, and rumblings are heard forecasting catastrophe unless means are found to remedy the situation. An official statement issued to the newspapers says the Central European problem, as left by the London Conference, has assumed so grave a form that it may "press for practical solution earlier, perhaps, than the world expects."

The phrase "practical solution," as far as it can be gathered, is construed to mean either a convulsive fusion with Germany or the disintegration of the State.

The dolls are said to be dressed in the glowing colors of the Orient and the manufacturer places a receptacle in them capable of holding from a pint to a quart.

BUDAPEST METAL WORKERS ON STRIKE

Budapest, Aug. 19.—A strike has been declared involving approximately thirty thousand metal workers. About half the men at first refused to leave the works call, but were finally forced to join the movement by the more radical element. The strike ostensibly is in support of demands for higher pay, but an attempt to gain political power is hinted at.

ELINOR GLYN SAYS:

"One can tell quite in a man's manner to his wife as to how he holds her in his love, and whether there is reverence and devotion there. And if he, feeling that way, yet by some stupid, tangled instinct likes to give a false impression by his actions, it is very hard upon the wife. And it is like that she should think of him as she would if he actually did it which he was only her lover."

MAGRATH NEAR AS MAN DIES IN STREET

While William H. Gerrish, eighty-five-year-old music publisher, lay dying on Beacon street, after he had been struck by an automobile, and while several of the crowd that gathered were securing the neighborhood for a doctor, Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath drove his automobile through the crowd and speeded away from the tragedy.

Gerrish was finally taken to the City Hospital in the auto of Martin J. Kilroy, No. 49 Astor street, who had struck him down. Gerrish died in the auto on the way to the hospital, and Kilroy went to Station 16 and surrendered himself.

Several of the crowd noticed Dr. Magrath driving up in his picturesque car with its clanging gong, and thought he was going to investigate the accident. They were amazed when he drove through the crowd and away.

Explaining his action, Dr. Magrath said today: "I saw the crowd gathered at the corner of Beacon and Exeter streets, but I knew nothing of any accident. I saw a loophole in the crowd and wormed through it. I am surprised that some of those who knew me did not notify me of the accident."

RUNAWAY BRIDE OF 19 RETURNS TO HER 88-YEAR OLD HUBBY

SPENT ALL HER MONEY ON TRIP

Maxine Hadlock Was Without Funds After 4 Weeks' Absence and Planned Suicide

Porter, Me., Aug. 19.—Maxine Hadlock, 19-year-old wife of Webster Hadlock, who is 88 years old and known as this town's wealthiest citizen, has returned to her home here after a four weeks' absence in which she tried to forget the husband who is more than four times her own age.

Her trip led her down to Portland, Me., and thence to Boston, where she finally found herself without funds, and where she was several times on the verge of suicide.

Her trip, she says, taught her one thing—that she can be happy with her husband. It was a belief that she had wasted her youth by giving herself to him that sent her away, and it was conviction that he can make her happy that brought her back.

PROPOSED BY MAIL.

Maxine, whose home is in Los Angeles, was living with her mother in El Paso, Texas, when she first met Hadlock, four years ago.

He seemed greatly attached to her, and when they separated, he kept up a correspondence. Finally he proposed by mail, secured her mother's consent to the match, and forwarded the girl her fare to Porter.

At first, it is said, Hadlock gave out that she was his niece. Discovering that this made talk, however, he married her, the ceremony being performed here on July 1.

Hadlock took her to his big fifteen-room colonial house, which stands on a hill, and the two were much in each other's company. They swam, fished and hunted together, and all seemed to be going well.

But Maxine was fond of dances and shows, and under the spell of these she finally ran away.

She had saved $300 to go back to California with. If necessary. She got as far as New York, then stopped to see the sights, coming up to Boston a few days later. Then she discovered she had spent so much she could not buy a ticket to Los Angeles. So she decided to go back to Porter.

But efforts to get in touch with her husband were futile. She telegraphed him she was dying, she sent many pleading wires, but no response came. She grew discouraged and decided her husband did not want her.

Her money gone, the girl walked the streets, contemplating suicide. She had a revolver and she planned to go to Boston Common and shoot herself, but her nerve failed.

Then, when she was at the rope's end she met a business friend of her husband. He gave her money to return home and she came back to Porter. Here she learned her husband, after a frantic, unsuccessful effort to find her, had gone on a hunting trip in the woods. Hence her telegrams had not been answered.

Hadlock was not in Porter when the girl returned, but a lawyer advised her she had a right to break into the house, and she gained entrance by forcing the catch on a window.

Swim Entrant

HELEN CONNAUGHTON.

Miss Connaughton, who lives at the edge of the salt water and who is one of New England's most adept mermaids, will be among those who will try to break the one-mile record at the Boston American's Water Carnival on August 26.

5 PRIZES FOR BIG SWIM SELECTED

The five principal prizes to be awarded the girls finishing first in the Boston American's one-mile swimming race for championship of New England in Charles River Basin next Saturday afternoon are announced today.

'GHOSTLY FACE' OF DR. HYSLOP IN PHOTO

New York, Aug. 19.—Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, chief investigator of the Psychical Research Society, identified a ghostly face appearing on an ordinary flashlight photograph as that of the late Professor James E. Hyslop of Columbia, the founder and for many years president of the Psychical Research Society.

In the photograph taken at a meeting of twelve physicians and writers interested in spirit phenomena, in the home of Dr. Edward P. Bowers, a trained nurse, Miss Marie Havliand is shown lying on a couch, surrounded by those who took part in the experiment.

Major Carl M. Ramus is shown in the group. In the upper left hand corner of the photograph appears the faint outline of a face. This Dr. Prince at once declared was Dr. Hyslop.

"I cannot positively affirm this to be a material manifestation of Dr. Hyslop without full investigation, which I intend to make," said Dr. Prince, "but this photograph bears a striking resemblance to him. It is the kind of picture which a spirit should make, and if it is a fake it is a most adroit one."

REBELS AT JOB OF 'KILLING ALL BREAKERS'

Claiming he had been appointed to a committee of the Amalgamated Tailors' Union to kill strike breakers and did not like his job, Joseph Gustanus, of No. 506 Broadway, South Boston, assaulted Joseph Lekis, of No. 26 Julian street, Dorchester, an official of the union.

Gustatus was fined $5 for assault and battery in the South Boston Court when he could not answer Judge Dean's question as to whether the union made a practice of killing strikebreakers.

Gustatus admitted the assault, saying he was walking home with Lekis after the meeting of the union last night when he attacked Lekis.

GIRL IN DARING JUMP FROM PLANE

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Ethel Dare, aviatrix, surely lives up to her name in connection with the "stunt" she performs daily for the Chicago Pageant of Progress. Each day she goes up in an airplane, ascends to a height of about 2,000 feet, and then drops from a parachute to Lake Michigan, while thousands of spectators look on. She was recentlycongratulated for the performance by Mayor William Hale Thompson.

PUTS IN 50 YEARS; LOOK WHERE HE IS!

A. J. McFadden

A rolling stone gathers no moss, the old proverb says, the theory being that a young man who sticks to his job and applies himself will in time become president or treasurer or something. Behold Anthony J. McFadden, a splendid example of the "stick-to-itiveness." Toney went to work for the Equitable Life Insurance Company as an office boy August 17, 1872. Thursday he celebrated his fiftieth anniversary with the company.

ONE DYING, 3 ARE HURT, IN AUTO CRASH

Haverhill, Aug. 19.—One man is dying and three other persons are at the Hale Hospital as the result of an automobile crash at Stickney's Corner, Groveland, early today.

The injured are:

Fred C. Nickerson, No. 35 Summer street, New Bedford. Fractured skull, not expected to live.

F. A. Healy, Lawrence, serious scalp wound and cuts about the face and body.

Mrs. Winnifred McGurn, Lawrence. Right leg nearly severed above the knee, deep cut in left leg and multiple cuts and bruises.

Miss May Cavanaugh, No. 137 Park street, Lawrence. Cuts and bruises.

COOK OUSTED BY INDIGNANT CAPE CODDERS

Provincetown, Aug. 19.—"I am very happy and contented, seeking no favors from any of you and revelling in the love that a happy home can give. And such a home I am the proud possessor of in a new colonial white house I built for my bride and I."

In such vein did Captain John A. Cook, retired Arctic explorer and wealthy oil promotor, flaunt his new love in the face of wife No. 1, Mrs. Viola D. Cook, who, for fourteen years braved the dangers of the Arctic with her husband, now sixty-six-years-old.

Wife No. 1 has two suits pending. In the first she is suing wife No. 2, formerly Mrs. Ethel M. Sparks, for $100,000, charging alienation of affections. In the second she sues her former Romeo for divorce.

Captain Cook is now living in Newton with his new bride, whom he says he married after divorcing wife No. 1 in Oklahoma.

Wrath of Cape Codders took a new turn today when it leaked out that Captain Cook has been ousted from the Board of Trade in which he held office for many years and was considered the "pooh bah." He has also been expelled from the Helping Hand Club, a charitable organization composed of wealthy people all over the Cape. Captain Cook was its treasurer.

Women members of the club, it is stated, were the prime movers in demanding the captain's resignation.

A new incident in the love triangle was also revealed today by Mrs. Angie Jones. "Captain Johnny was learning to drive his new car last Summer," she said. "Mrs. Sparks was sitting with him in the front seat. The real Mrs. Cook was in the rear. Mrs. Sparks said: 'Oh, Captain Johnny, you're doing splendidly.' And she placed her hands on the captain's shoulders.

WOMAN DYING, VICTIM OF DUD SHELL

Bristol, N. H., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Fred Tenny, forty-five years old, home keeper for Mr. and Mrs. Spencer of Prospect street, is dying at the Franklin Hospital, a victim of a "dud" shell.

The shell exploded when, it is believed, she knocked it over while dusting it with him in the front seat. The real Mrs. Cook was in the rear. Mrs. Sparks said: 'Oh, Captain Johnny, you're doing splendidly.' And she placed her hands on the captain's shoulders.

The shell, eight inches long, had been in the house only three weeks. Ralph Gile, a war souvenir. A piece of the shell lodged over her right eye, the sight of which will be lost if Mrs. Tenney recovers. The shell shattered completely when it exploded, and other pieces lodged in various parts of her body, while the fingers of her right hand were blown off.

Mrs. Tenney was found by neighbors, who were attracted by groans coming from the house. She was in a semi-conscious condition and had wandered downstairs.

THREE NOW DEAD IN AIR CRASH

Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 19.—Evelyn Harris who was injured yesterday in the airplane crash in which James Trahan and his five-year-old son were killed, died in a hospital here today. She suffered severe burns and other injuries. She was the daughter of Charles A. Harris of Putney, treasurer of the Brattleboro Savings Bank.

Miss Harris was a passenger in the plane together with James Trahan and his five-year-old son of this city, when it went into the air for a stunt flying as the last event in the dedication of a new aviation field. The pilot, Benjamin Hughes of Mineola, L. I., had just taken off from the field when the plane touched a tree. The machine swerved and went into a nose dive, crashing into high tension wires and then downward tumbles. It immediately burst into flames.

Hughes was thrown clear of the wreckage, but when spectators reached the scene Trahan and his son were dead.

4 MEN IN A BOAT (WITH A GIRL) FINED

Four men and a girl lived together in a boat in Dorchester Bay from last Tuesday until today when they were found by the police. The girl is Miss Alice Lewis, 18 years old, of No. 231 Bowdoin street. One of the men were released on the girl's story, which freed him of complicity. The others are Thomas F. Venneen of No. 8 Balfour street, William L. Carrol of East street, and Groog W. Kubino of New York. In the South Boston court the men were fined $10 apiece and the girl was sent to the House of the Good Shepherd.

Flapper Finds Tuning Piano Has Woes of Undertaker

TAKING THE MEW OUTA MUSIC

All you hafta do to tune a piano is tear it apart and make a lotta noise. The longer an' louder the banging the better the customers like it. Me an' the old man who tunes most of Boston's pianos were going strong until we found a colony of mice in A Flat. Then we got the bum's rush.

By THE FLAPPER.

"Yes," the old man continued, after a significant pause, "I believe I may say with modesty that I've played upon some of the best pianos in the country.

"My calling has taken me to many and strange cities. I have worked upon some of the great stages of the large cities, and again I have paused to bring a bit of harmony into some simple cottager's home."

I looked at my companion again. His were the eyes of the dreamer, the hands of the artist, the vest of a laborer on his day off.

"Well, we're here," the old man said, stopping in front of a house in Watertown. "This is the place."

Together we climbed the stairs and the old man timidly rang the bell.

MOST FOLKS MUSIC MINUS.

"You will notice," he prepared me, "that these people, like the rest, will know as much about music as a rabbit. Oh, the beauty blind, the tone deaf! Sometimes I think I can't stand it. My heart cries out ——"

The door suddenly opened and a tough child with angry freckles, skip-stop teeth, grinned insolently at us.

"My ma doesn't want nuthin' today," he snapped, and the door slammed shut.

"Now what's we do?" I asked. "Go to the next place?"

"No," returned the old man. "We ring again. I am always taken for an Armenian lace monger or a vassilla salesman until I am given an opportunity to explain myself."

HIGH C IS TOUGHEST.

Presently the door opened again and this time we were admitted by a wispy wren in curl papers.

"It's here's the piano," she said, shortly. "Don't bust it."

The old man opened his reticule and took out his instruments.

"The hard part about piano tuning," he instructed me, holding a tuning fork to my ear, 'is getting your middle "C." Once you got that the battle is half won, you might say. Get durnit."

"Whassa mater now?" I asked.

"Jus' listen," said the old man.

I listened. The youth with the freckles was tuning up a harmonica for a rendition of "The Robin's Return."

LOCATES THE WHEEZE.

The canary was playing tag with a lotta scales.

And the lady of the house was gabbing over the telephone.

"Now," wept the old man, "you c'n see what you're up against when you take up my callin.' It ain't all so easy."

By this time he had the front facade of the piano off and was winding up a lotta loose strings on the piano's inners.

"I don't know what can be the matter with it," the wispy wren stepped in to tell us. "I dust it every day and I don't allow anyone to play it. It oughtn't to break down and wheeze like that."

"Aha," ahs'd the old man, coming up from the inside of the piano. "I've found the trouble."

FINDS MICES' NEST.

"Indeed," said the lady of the house. "What is it?"

"A family of mice," the piano tuner said, peering into the organ again. "They scamper in through the pedals and shred the sounding board to make nests."

"What! How dare you call me a shiftless housekeeper?" the wispy one ranted. "If you're a piano tuner I'm the Queen of the Nile. Such nonsense. A mouse in the house! Woof!"

The piano tuner patiently gathered up his tools.

"All right, lady," he said, meekly, "I guess I'll be going."

Outside the house he made faces and said fiercely:

"See! I told you they don't know anything about music. She needs a mouse-trap, not a piano tuner."

We walked in silence for several minutes. The old man began to hum "The Bleib."

"What's our next address?" he asked me.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN WOODS

Lowell, Aug. 19.—The body of a woman, apparently about 30 years old, was found in the woods off Pawtucket boulevard this afternoon by Frank Bowers of Tyler street. The body was discovered about 100 feet from the boulevard. The woman had been dead for several days.

POLITICAL GUNS MEET AT BIG BARBECUE

The political pow-wow extraordinaire is on.

Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, this afternoon was the mecca of all politicians. Seldom in years has a barbecue drawn together such a galaxy of men prominent in the public eye for one afternoon.

Senators, congressmen, governors, attorney-generals, and mayors—twenty-two of them—gathered at Caledonian Grove at the Ex-Service Men's Non-Partisan League's political barbecue.

Starting at 1 o'clock and continuing into the evening one grandiose round of music, feasting, entertainment, vaudeville and games transpired on the giant midway erected in the grove.

While the fun for both young and old flowed on, the candidates addressed the monster gathering, staged under the auspices of the Ex-Service Men's Non-Partisan League.

LODGE HEADS LIST.

Leading the list of eminent dignitaries scheduled to speak at the barbecue is Senator Lodge. His presence at the grove, although doubtful because of the strike tension at Washington, is expected, as well as that of the junior Senator, Mr. Walsh.

Attorney-General Allen arrived early in the afternoon from Westford to deliver his speech. Governor Cox appeared shortly after the Attorney-General.

MRS. CRAM SPEAKS.

Mrs. Alice E. Cram, candidate for State Auditor, arrived early in the afternoon, from the western part of the State, where she has been engaged in her own campaign. A large delegation of women greeted her following her speech on the tariff.

She was followed by Mrs. James D. Tillinghast of Cambridge, the only woman member of the Republican State Committee.

Following the speeches of Mesdames Cram and Tillinghast, a short reception was held for them by Mrs. Salem Gardes and Mrs. Rose Willis.

WALSH IS BRIEF.

John Jackson Walsh, who was invited as a Democratic candidate for United States Senator to speak at the Caledonian Grove outing and barbecue of the Ex-Service Men's Non-Partisan League this afternoon, made the shortest speech of the day.

He said:

"If the American heroes would preserve the glory they won on the field of battle let them take a studious interest in public affairs, demand that political life be honorable and inviting to men of ability and courage, and be independent in political action and never allow their organizations to become the property of self-seekers.

"If I were to speak a whole day I could give you nothing better by way of suggestion for a permanent exhibition of patriotism."

GIRL OF 15 IS GONE; HUSBAND MISSING, TOO

Mrs. Giacomo Ruscio is on her way to Revere from Italy. She expects to find her husband here when she arrives. If the police discover she may do so.

Annie Ciampoli

They are searching for Giacomo and fifteen - year - old Annie Ciampoli, of No. 483 Maiden street, Revere, who are believed to have eloped last Tuesday. The parents of the Ciampoli girl have asked for the arrest of Giacomo on an abduction charge.

When Giacomo left his boarding house at No. 42 Trecora avenue, he neglected to pay his landlady, Mrs. Rocco Mariano, $200 back board, so she is also interested in his apprehension.

The mother of Annie said the girl left her home early Tuesday morning, ostensibly to pay a visit to her sister, Mrs. Frances Cardilli of Somerville. At 8 o'clock, two hours after the girl had left home, the mother called up her others daughter and asked whether Annie had arrived.

Giacomo Ruscio

She had not, and since then has not been heard from. The girl had been warned by her parents against association with Ruscio, but appeared to be infatuated with him.

NOVA SCOTIA TO MAN MINE PUMPS

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 19.—E. H. Armstrong, Minister of Mines and Public Works in the Nova Scotia government, announced today that the Provincial government will man the pumps at the Nova Scotia mines threatened with flooding. The men will work under the protection of special Provincial police, who will have power to call in the militia. One thousand men have been advertised for to engage in police duty.

MILL FAVORED IN PICKETING REPORT

Lawrence, Aug. 19.—James W. Santry, acting as master in the case of the Patchogue-Plymouth Mills against the One Big Union and the United Textile Workers of America, issued his report today in which the plaintiff is favored. The company asked that an injunction be restrained to prevent the unions from unlawful picketing, violence and intimidation. Mr. Wilbert to whom strikers did this they were subject to fines of $5 to $10. If the court adopts the report of Master Santry, based on his report, and grants the injunction, those who violate it will be guilty of contempt of court and liable to far more heavy penalties.

THREE RESCUED IN BOAT OFF SCITUATE

Three men, adrift in a disabled motor boat in a heavy sea, were rescued three miles off Scituate by the Provincetown steamer, Dorothy Bradford. The Dorothy Bradford was proceeding from Provincetown to Boston when the launch was sighted bobbing helplessly up and down on the choppy waves.

The men were found at the point of complete exhaustion from their frantic signalling and their efforts to control the motor boat with their oars.

The government patrol boat answered the Bradford's call and towed the disabled launch to port.

WOMEN'S CLUBS PUT BAN ON CIGARETTES

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Cigarette smoking by women is modern, and they have a right to do it and all that, but—it will not be permitted in the new tearoom of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here, it was announced today.

"It isn't done any more by the best people," explained Mrs. M. R. Durnell, the manager of the tearoom, hastened to qualify, "it won't be for long; besides, it's wrong."

SOLD LIQUOR TO COP; APPEALS $100 FINE

George F. McGary of No. 218 Broadway was fined $100 for selling liquor to police officers. He was in the Boston Municipal Court today, charged with the sale of liquor and with illegally keeping and exposing liquor for sale. McGary was found not guilty on the other charges and appealed the $100 fine. Officers said that they had bought a pint of liquor from him in a cigar store on C street, where he worked.

BRITISH NOTE ON MONEY PARLEY DUE

London, Aug. 19.—The Foreign Office is putting the finishing touches on a note replying to the French suggestion that an international conference be held at Venice in September to make another effort at settlement of the indemnity problem and to attempt to restore peace between naingalist Turkey and Greece.

TAKES POISON IN ROW OVER SUITOR

For the past three weeks, seventeen-year-old Mary Correali of No. 2 Castle street, East Boston, has failed to turn her earnings over to her parents.

Vincenzo Correali, her father, called her to task for it.

She explained that she was saving up to buy an outfit for a double wedding. It appears that her chums, Michelena di Chiago and Louisa Colyarda of Cottage street, were to be married September 3, and she was to be bridesmaid for Michelena.

Then there was Jimmy Ruscio, a certain young man. He was to be present at the wedding. Mary wanted to look nice.

The father disapproved of the entire affair. He forbade attendance at the wedding. Then her brother, Dominick, expressed disapproval of Jimmy. When she defended Jimmy, Dominick beat her. Mary decided that the ban of Jimmy and the prohibition of her role as bridesmaid were too much for a girl to bear.

In the kitchen she found some disinfectant. She drank it.

At the Relief Station in East Boston today, when told she would live, she consented to see her mother.

"I don't want to live, mother," she cried. "I'm sorry that I did not die. As soon as I come out of here I'll drown myself. I sweated and slaved in that stuffy old North street sweater shop by day and stayed in our little home nights to save enough money to buy a new dress because Michelina is my chum and wants me to be her bridesmaid. And just when I had almost enough father quarrelled with me and won't let me buy the dress.

"And Dominick, because he's my older brother and doesn't work, takes money from me and then beats me because I go out with a boy that he doesn't like. I am too unhappy, mother, and I want to die."

Mary is employed in a knitting mill on North street. Her chum works in the same shop.

THREE NOW DEAD IN AIR CRASH

Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 19.—Evelyn Harris who was injured yesterday in the airplane crash in which James Trahan and his five-year-old son were killed, died in a hospital here today. She suffered severe burns and other injuries. She was the daughter of Charles A. Harris of Putney, treasurer of the Brattleboro Savings Bank.

Miss Harris was a passenger in the plane together with James Trahan and his five-year-old son of this city, when it went into the air for a stunt flying as the last event in the dedication of a new aviation field. GIRL DUPED BY BIGAMIST SAYS LOVE FOR HIM IS DEAD

HASSE EN LAST OF FOWLER

Father of Wife No. 2 Also Denounces "Husband" as Arrant Deceiver

"She gave me up, even though she loves me still. She is a brick. She is wonderful."

Back with wife No. 1 at Reed terrace, Roxbury, in whose custody he was discharged after being placed on probation on a bigamy charge, John A. Fowler, much married Roxbury painter, - this time Miss Madeline V. Ryder of No. 9 Crawfield street, with whom he went through a form of marriage in Philadelphia last Fall.

But at her father's home where she is living with her two months' old baby, Miss Ryder, or wife No. 2, has an entirely different story to tell.

OUT OF HER LIFE.

"I never want to see him again," she says, and she is backed up by her father, who says that he will not be responsible for anything that happens if Fowler ever attempts to darken their door again.

As soon as he is able, Fowler will establish wife No. 2 in a home of their own. Both women are now confined to their beds. Wife No. 1 is ill from the effects of the birth of her youngest child, born less than two months ago. Wife No. 2 is prostrated as the result of the despicable trick of the man she had learned to love.

And the man just laughs and says he will try and "do the right thing."

DENOUNCED BY FATHER.

As far as Miss Ryder and her parents are concerned the "right thing" is for Fowler to keep out of their sight forever. Neither father nor daughter ever wish to set eyes on him again.

But Fowler just smiles and says "She still loves me."

William Ryder, father of the girl Fowler married in Philadelphia last November insists that he will treat his erstwhile son-in-law with scant consideration should he ever cross his path again.

"Sixty years old as I am, if ever that cousin in my state I will do him harm," the broken hearted father said. "He came to me, told he was single and married my girl last Fall. All Winter I supported him and he lived here at our house. Now this is the payment for our kindness to him."

ONLY GIVES CLOTHES.

Miss Ryder will make her home with her parents as she did before Fowler entered her life. The furniture which Mr. Ryder provided the couple to set up housekeeping at No. 120 Geneva avenue, Dorchester, will be brought back to the Crawford street house. All that Fowler was allowed to take out of the "love nest" were his own clothes.

Mr. Ryder is in love with his little grandchild. "She is just the dearest baby you ever saw," he said. "A regular little angel. My wife and I will take her into our own hearts and she will be another daughter to us."

Fowler said that he met Miss Ryder last Summer at a beach and that it was a case of love at first sight.

SENTINELS FORM TO GUARD CONSTITUTION

"Sentinels of the Republic" is the designation of a new extra-political organization which has been started in Boston. The incorporators are Louis A. Coolidge of Milton, State Treasurer James Jackson of Westwood, Ex-Attorney General Herbert Parker of Lancaster, Charles S. Backemann of Milton, Boyd B. Jones of Haverhill, Henry B. Humphrey of Brookline, Maurice S. Sherman of Springfield, Frank F. Dresser of Brookline and Katherine T. Balch of Milton. Principles of the body are to maintain the Constitution, oppose Federal encroachment on State rights, stop the growth of Socialism, prevent concentration of power in Washington and help preserve a free Republican form of government in the United States.

SPECIAL MUSIC FOR ST. PAUL'S

The "Hallelujah Chorus," from the "Messiah," will be sung in St. Paul's Cathedral at the morning service tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Miss Serra the Cathedral violinist, will play Handel's "Largo," and the entire service will be sent broadcast by the Shepard radio station. The subject of the sermon by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan at that service will be "The Transfusion of the Spirit, or Our Inward Selves Revived."

At the evening service the "Hallelujah Chorus" will be repeated, and Miss Serra will play the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria." Dr. Sullivan will speak on "Succeeding With What We Have." Letters from all over New England tell of the widespread interest in the broadcasting of this morning service.

try would, administration leaders hoped, act as a spur in driving Congress to act quickly.

It was believed the House Interstate Commerce Committee would report a bill providing for a Federal coal corporation with a capitalization of $100,000,000 and empowered to purchase, sell and distribute coal only when such activities are held necessary to avoid coal shortage, stabilize prices and prevent profiteering.

Report Dynamiting on Three Roads

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Outbursts in the railroad strike were reported at scattered points from the Atlantic to the Pacific today. Bombs were thrown into the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe yards at Albuquerque, N. M., and a blast rocked the trestle of a Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad bridge near Huntington, W. Va.

Dynamite tore up the track of the Illinois Central at Paducah, Ky., just ahead of a coal train. Two passenger trains and a freight had passed a short time before. The oncoming coal train was flagged in time to prevent a wreck.

United States deputy marshals were rushed to Shawnee, Okla., to guard against violence in the shops of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific. Thirty shots had been fired into the shops where workmen were employed.

At Pratt, Kansas, a warrant was issued for Thomas P. Hylan, general chairman of the Rock Island carmen. The warrant charged violation of the Industrial Court act. Hylan in a speech was quoted as referring to the court as a joke.

CUP RACES OFF GLOUCESTER OCT. 15

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 19.—Trustees of the Halifax Herald trophy, emblematic of the international schooner championship of the North Atlantic, said today that the International races would probably be held about October 1 off Gloucester. The Nova Scotia races will be held early in October. J. J. Kinley, Lunenburg, and F. W. Baldwin, Buddeck, were chosen to represent Nova Scotia at the international event.

WEYMOUTH OBSERVES 300TH BIRTHDAY

Exercises commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of Weymouth were to be held in that town today and tonight, despite the fact that the big tercentenary celebration has been postponed until next year. Tablets were to be placed at spots of historic interest today, while a banquet will be held tonight in a tent on Weymouth Great Hill.

AUBURN HAIRED GIRL A 'QUEEN' POSSIBILITY

Will the "Queen of the Hub" be a blonde or a brunette?

Or will she have red hair?

Which type will the committee of judges decide is the MOST CHARMING GIRL in Boston or vicinity?

These are some of the interesting questions that have arisen in connection with the Boston American's search for the most winsome girl in this city or its environs.

BLONDES SCARCE.

Thus far more brunettes are entered in the tournament than any other type. Although several blondes are entered, it would seem that the natural blonde type is passing out of existence in this section of the country.

Among the recent entrants is Marcia Moore, living at No. 24 Charlesgate West, Back Bay. One of her admirers sent in her photograph with coupon, thus nominating her for the week's free trip to Atlantic City, with all expenses of self and chaperon paid. The trip will start September 4, the first day of the three-day Fall pageant at America's marvelous seaside resort.

NOMINATES WIFE.

Nineteen-year-old Mrs. Florence M. Nickerson of No. 74 Graham street, Leominster, was nominated for the week of pleasure by her husband, George Nickerson, who considers his wife the most bewitching woman he knows. In entering her name for the trip he wrote: "My wife is nineteen years of age and is fresh and charming."

Mrs. Biederman of No. 172 Boston street, Dorchester, nominated 17-year-old Lillian Smith of Sumner street, Dorchester. Of her entry she wrote: "By her charming personality Miss Smith has made many friends.

Other recent entries include Lillian MacKinnon, 19, of No. 3 Kenilworth street, Roxbury; Daisy A. Young, 19, of Dorset, No. 1, Ashton street, Roxbury; and Francesca Brargiotti, 19, dancer, No. 70 Upland road, Brookline.

Arrangements have been made for Boston's MOST CHARMING girl to meet some of the best known girl artists in the country on the third night of the Atlantic City pageant. At a grand ball on that evening she will be introduced to such artists of national renown as Howard Chandler Christy, Willy Pogany, Celea Philips, Joseph Cummings Chase, Dr. Arnold Genthe, Hayworth Campbell, H. Dewitt Smith and Ernest W. Hutaf. These men are to act as judges to determine who is the MOST CHARMING girl in the United States and Canada. She will be named "Miss America." One girl from each of seventy-five cities in both countries will compete.

WELL, A TEAMSTER'S LIFE IS TOO DULL!

George H. Brown, a teamster, employed by the Merchants, Holmes Company, truckmen of No. 200 Lincoln street, found himself suddenly surrounded by fire apparatus at Kneeland and South streets today

Brown looked for the fire but didn't see it. He was amazed when fire department officials demanded an explanation.

It developed that the rear end of Brown's two-horse wagon set off the fire alarm box on the corner, when he was turning, knocked it from its post and sounded an alarm.

WOULD TAKE AWAY DR. HANSON'S LICENSE

West Dennis, Aug. 19.—Dr. J. Leo Hanson's plan to use the inmates of a negro orphan asylum for medical research at his gland farm here will be bitterly opposed. Residents today started a petition to the Massachusetts State License Board to have his license revoked on the ground of unprofessional conduct.

LYNN SHOE MEN REJECT PLAN OF JOINT BOARD

By a vote of 447 to 47, the Allied Shoe Workers' Union of Lynn today rejected the agreement drawn up by its own joint council and the manufacturers, which was submitted to the State Board of Arbitration for a final perusal.

The action was considered in union circles to be a reprimand to the Lynn Manufacturers' Association for its failure to give back pay to the women stitchers of Local 67, and who will return to their work on Monday morning after a two weeks' strike.

The action of the Allied Shoe Workers' Union complicates the situation, coming at a time when the women had agreed to return to their jobs, but it is believed that the agreement which was made by the Mayor's arbitration board will eventually be accepted by the union in preference to the agreement drawn up by their own council and the manufacturers.

There is no strike pending among the Allied Shoe Workers, and with the return of the women to work on Monday, business in Lynn factories will be resumed.

$50,000 LOSS FROM FIRE IN CAMBRIDGE

Damage estimated at more than $50,000 was caused by a fire today which swept the plant of the Cambridge Auto Body and Wagon Company at No. 149 First street, East Cambridge.

For a time the fire threatened a portion of the manufacturing district.

Fifty horses were rescued from a stable of the Frost Forwarding Company in the rear of the factory building. The cause of the fire has not been established.

The factory, a two-story wooden building, burned rapidly. A shift in the wind sent a shower of sparks over adjoining factory buildings and to tenement houses a block away. Occupants of the houses were aroused and were prepared to move.

The firemen fought the blaze from roofs of nearby structures. It was a spectacular affair, and First street and the immediate vicinity were jammed. The building contained machinery and finished and unfinished auto and wagon bodies.

4 HAVERHILL CHILDREN ARE SAVED IN FIRE

Haverhill, Aug. 19.—Two men were badly burned about the face and hands and four small children were rescued when fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, swept through the top floor of a two-family house at No. 59 Locke street, early today.

State police and fire officials are investigating. According to the police the fire started with an explosion.

On the lower floor lived Harry Williams, his wife and four small children. Williams was awakened by the explosion. He grabbed his three smallest children and carried them to the street in their night clothes. His wife and the other child dashed out behind him.

$1,300 ROBBERY IN NORTH END HOME

Postal savings certificates, valued at $1,200, and silverware and jewelry, valued at about $100, were stolen from the home of Nicholas Dominico, No. 99 Prince street, North End, the police were informed early this afternoon reported that on returning to his house last evening he found the front door open.

Newport Tennis Draws Large Gathering of Smart Set, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

A BRILLIANT assemblage at the Casino in Newport yesterday showed more than usual enthusiasm over the tennis matches, and the large crowd had to brave one of the hottest days of the Summer to attend. Naturally the clothing was of the lightest, and the shady spots the most popular. After the matches there was a large assortment of luncheon parties planned.

In the afternoon there was a reception aboard the battleship Wyoming, given by Rear Admiral John D. McDonald and his staff. The officers received their guests under a canopy trimmed with hydrangeas, and there was dancing on the main deck.

Among the spectators at the Casino were: Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte, in pale green chiffon, a large black hat set with white flowers; Mrs. Craig Biddle, in a gown of light blue with the sleeves and girdle embroidered with squares of red and black; Miss Fanny Wickes, in a white canton crepe dress, with a large green hat; Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, in a vivid French cretonne one-piece frock in tones of orange, brown, black and white, and Mrs. George Widener, in a gown of light purple crepe, with a pink hat with grapes on it, and carrying a small scarlet parasol.

Others there were: General and Mrs. James Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, Mrs. Ogden Hammond, Mrs. Seymour Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. James Lenox Banks, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and Mrs. Burnham Gray, the younger set had their dance on the veranda while the tennis tournament was going on. Among those dancing were: The Misses Marion Gray, Laura Biddle, Fanny Wickes and Florence Havemeyer. The dancing lasted until sunset, with Mrs. Thayer, Mrs. Burnham Gray, W. W. Firshugh Whitehouse acting as chaperons.

Tonight is the time set for the large ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice at "Miramar." Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Taller are giving one of the largest dinners before the ball at their home, "Honeysuckle Lodge."

MISS VIRGINIA WAINWRIGHT, a member of the Vincent Club and many other prominent clubs, gave a successful entertainment Tuesday afternoon in the Manchester Town Hall. The audience, which was enthusiastic, was composed of North Shore residents. Miss Wainwright gave humorous poems and short stories, and her program was quite different from the one last week at Mrs. R. Sumner Welles' home in Manchester.

The prominent patronesses for this entertainment were: Mrs. Henry F. Sears, Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent, Mrs. Elmer Fitz, Mrs. Dana, William L. Putnam, Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Francis Whitehouse, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. Dunbar, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Franklin Dexter, Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Miss Amy Forbes, Mrs. Reginald B. Gannett, Jr., Mrs. Reginald Pits, Mrs. Gardner Beale, Miss Margaret Cushing, Miss Eugene Foster, Mrs. Henry Fay, Mrs. Henry F. McKean, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., Mrs. David Little, Miss Sarah Guild, Miss Mary Burnham, Miss Elizabeth Hammond, Mrs. Frederick Gelasch, Mrs. William Brewham, Jr., Mrs. F. A. Parkhurst and Mrs. Charles Hodges.

MR. AND MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT and family have spent the greater part of the Summer on the Roosevelt estate in Vermont. They have grown to like it so well that they are planning to build a Summer home there. Mr. Roosevelt is the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK W. STEARNS, who live at the Hotel Touraine in the Winter, and at their home, Faikland, Swampscott, during the Summer months, returned from a short trip abroad about three or four weeks ago. Since then, they had the honor of entertaining the second cabinet family, the wife and the second lady of the land, Vice-President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, and the boy Coolidge boys, John and Calvin, Jr.

After a delightfully quiet week spent at Swampscott, the Coolidges and Mr. and Mrs. Stearns left for San Francisco, to be gone for the rest of the Summer. The return of the Coolidges for a visit to the Shore each year is proof enough of their attachment to the place.

POPE PIUS GETS AN AUTO AND WILL USE IT

Rome, Aug. 19. (By the Associated Press).—Pope Pius is to have an automobile. The people of Milan, where the Pontiff was archbishop before his election, have presented him with a machine of the latest Italian model. The Pontiff, it is said, will use the car within the Vatican gardens, which he now circles twice daily in his promenades, a distance of three and a quarter miles.

When the car was brought into the Vatican grounds Pope Pius went out to see it.

"We will use it first to transport the statute of Madonna of Lorette," the Pontiff said, meaning that the car would be utilized September 4 to carry the copy of the famous statue, which he is to bless that day, from the Vatican to Loretto.

This is the first time a Pope ever has owned an automobile. Some of the Cardinals in late years, however, have been possessors of gas propelled cars. Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli was the first of the cardinals to have a car, it having been presented to him by American Catholics. Cardinal Merry Del Val, when Papal Secretary of State, also had a gasoline in which he was wont to sun-motorize daily to motor to the seashore fourteen miles from Rome to bathe.

INVITES GUESTS, THEN USES GUN

John Heck, a sixty-eight-year-old Scituation fisherman, invited the neighbors to partake of blueberries he had picked. When the neighbors tried to enter his house to accept the invitation he threatened them with a shotgun. The police were summoned. Patrolman James Whalen of the Quincy police department disregarded the aged man's threat to shoot and placed him under arrest. It is believed that the patrolman suffered by Heck's two weeks ago, has impaired his mentality.

NEW DRY SQUAD MAKES R. I. AN 'ARID WASTE'

Providence, R. I., Aug. 19.—Rhode Island, and particularly this city, long a Mecca for the thirsty, became an arid waste today. All due to the fact sweeps made by National Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes, who descended on the State yesterday with a whole new enforcement squad at his heels.

Rhode Island is dry, and more than that the new regime claims that it will remain dry. The scores of predatory bootleggers to the contrary notwithstanding.

Today forty enforcement agents, none of them known to the booze fraternity, roam the state seeking whom they may corral, and the said fraternity is in a frenzy of terror.

The new prohibition director for the district is Harry G. Sheldon of Lowell, and nobody in Providence and its vicinity knows him either. Things are in a terrible state for the thirsty and those who thrive on the thirsty.

Said Director Sheldon today, "I am here to enforce the law fearlessly and impartially, and it will be so enforced. That is all I have to say."

This terse statement holds out no promise to the bootleggers.

Commissioner Haynes said today that he would bring no criminal charges against any member of the deposed dry squad. "My business is to enforce the prohibition law," he said. "Any criminal charge in the province of another Federal department."

The commissioner undoubtedly meant the Department of Justice, and despite his statement those interested in the local prohibition issue are confident that the deposed enforcement squad has something yet to hear from Uncle Sam.

BOY IS KILLED BY RIFLE WHILE AT PLAY

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 19.—Frank Kelleher, 14 years old, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, was accidently shot and killed while he and several other children were playing with a rifle at the Whalebone cottage on Pool road.

According to the story told by the children, Kelleher dared the others to snap the rifle at him. One of them took the dare, and Kelleher was shot in the abdomen, dying half an hour later.

The boy made a statement saying he had loaded the rifle some time ago, but had forgotten about it, and thought there was no cartridge in the weapon.

BURLESQUE RESUMES MONDAY

Gala Reopening of the Gayety Theatre Offers "Greenwich Village Revue"

The burlesque season for Boston begins Monday with the gala reopening of the Gayety Theatre.

The program for the re-opening week offers Joe Hurtig's Greenwich Village Revue, a show of dazzling beauty, consistent merriment, and charming musical and dancing numbers. To celebrate the inauguration of a new season the Gayety Theatre has been remodeled and redecorated. When the doors are thrown open tomorrow it will be seen that the theatre is beautiful in its new coat of paint and artistic finish and decorations.

The locale for the brilliant story unfolded in "The Greenwich Village Revue" is that dwelling place of literary and artistic geniuses in New York City that known as Greenwich Village.

AL JOLSON IS WEDDED TO SHOW GIRL

New York, Aug. 19.—"Hello! Is this Mr. Jolson's apartment?"

"Yes."

"May I speak to Mr. Jolson?"

"Mr. Jolson is not home just now," replied a sweet feminine voice.

"Then, may I speak to Mrs. Jolson?"

"This is Mrs. Jolson speaking."

The above telephone conversation confirmed the rumor that Al Jolson, king of blackface comedians, had turned benedict for the second time. His bride is Ethel Delmar, who played in "The Scandals of 1920."

The bride refused to give details of the marriage, which is rumored to have been performed at the Little Church Around the Corner on Tuesday.

Al Jolson first appeared in burnt cork on the New York stage in 1909.

The rumor of his marriage was also confirmed at the Shubert offices. According to the Shubert statement Miss Delmar's name off the stage is Alma Osborne, whose home is near Easton, Pa.

MEN LAUGH, WOMAN MARSHAL QUITS

Deslace, N. D., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Bertha Ward, elected village marshal last Spring when a complete feminine administration was swept into office, has surrendered her star to the village council because "in a disorderly manner," would just laugh at me and I was helpless." Mrs. Ward's colleagues opposed her resignation, fearing failure of the feminine regime might be inferred. Her husband favored it. Daniel Olson, the new marshal, is a section foreman in company with a blonde young woman.

drunken man or some one active in hand.

Farmer Dies at 82

Fitchburg, Aug. 19—James Hasiam, 82 years old, widely-known agriculturist, died at his home here.

CHAPMAN, SON OF EVANGELIST, MARRIES AGAIN

Meredith, N. H., Aug. 19.—J. Wilbur Chapman, son of the noted evangelist, was married here to Miss Hazel Ware.

Young Chapman's former wife, Mrs. Alice Bonay Chapman, who lives with her mother in New York, obtained a divorce last April. Her action was tried on April 7.

One week later Justice Brown signed an interlocutory decree in favor of Mrs. Chapman. This decree became final on July 18, so that young Chapman waited only a month after his first wife divorced him before remarrying.

The star witnesses against Chapman were his pretty young wife's mother and her cousin, Percival Bent, who lives at the Bonay home.

Mrs. Bonay said that one day last Summer she saw her son-in-law leaving his home at No. 2647 Broadway with a young woman she did not know. When she entered the place, the witness declared, she found articles of feminine wear that did not belong to her daughter.

Bent told of entering the Chapman suite with a key last Easter Sunday. He testified he saw Chapman in company with a blonde

CLAIMS PASTOR TRIED TO LURE LITTLE GIRLS

Windsor, Aug. 19—Ruth Goodell, 16 year old sister of Evelyn Goodell, who charges that the Rev. Joseph Walker, 70 year old pastor of the Union Congregational church is the father of her three days old baby, has entered the lists in defense of her sister. She has related an amazing list of occurrences in which the pastor figures in an unsavory light.

According to the little girl's story the pastor attempted to coax the small girls of the village with promises to attend "swing parties" at his house, adjoining the church. Ruth also says that Mr. Walker often tried to persuade girls to go to the belfry of the church with him.

Wine parties, in which young men of the village participated, were frequent occurrences in the pastor's kitchen, the girl said.

No one in the village can be found to confirm Ruth Goodell's stories, and girls of her own age are unanimous in stating that the minister always treated them with consideration and respect. Villagers continue to shun Goodell, and the ostracizing has even extended to members of his family.

The Rev. T. F. Mordecai, son-in-law of the accused pastor, will take his father-in-law's place in the pulpit tomorrow. Mr. Walker is in Lewiston in Maine, prostrated over the charges that have been made against him.

19 in One Auto, and All in One Family

Waterville, Me., Aug. 19.—The nineteen-passenger flivver has been discovered.

In Waterville "The Family Auto Contest" was held. To the largest family to enter the contest, from point of numbers, a prize of $50 was offered. But the family had to be aboard a Lizzie.

The judges nearly collapsed when Mr. and Mrs. Henry Giguere and their seventeen husky youngsters hove in sight. The fan was about the only place that did not hold some member of the family. They won.

NEW ALLIED DEMAND THAT GERMANY PAY

Berlin, Aug. 19.—(By International News Service)—Payment by Germany within a month of the overdue 1,500,000 pounds sterling demanded by the allies on account of private debts was demanded in a note received by the German government, it was learned today. It was presented to give German a respite in the payment of the 50,000,000 gold marks due August 15, if Germany paid 2,000,000 pounds sterling through the socalled clearing house. Germany said she could pay only 500,000 pounds sterling and this much was paid on Tuesday.

NAVAL OFFICER WINS DIVORCE AFTER RAID

Taunton, Aug. 19.—Sergeant Joseph A. Santos of the New Bedford police went into a house on Elm street, New Bedford, at 1 a. m.

In a room in the house he found Mrs. Ethel E. Snyder of Fairhaven and William H. McNeil, alias Mooney, known to the police officer as "a character about town."

The couple were registered at the place as Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Briggs of Newton street, Boston.

They were placed under arrest. Later they were arraigned, charged with violation of the true name law. Mrs. Snyder pleaded guilty and was given a three month's sentence, which was suspended, she being placed on probation.

Sergeant Santos testified to the foregoing events as having occurred on March 7 last. It resulted in a decree of divorce being granted to Lieutenant William Ellsworth Snyder, U. S. N., who during the war was attached at the Harvard Radio School. The divorce was uncontested.

Lieutenant Snyder was given custody of a seven-year-old adopted daughter, Helen Ellsworth Snyder.

It's a Heavy Job, Picking Name for No. 14

Newark, N. J., Aug. 19.—It's no job naming the first one, or the second, or the third—but when it comes to the fourteenth baby who has to have a name, that's the problem, especially if there is an aversion to poetical names.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan received visit No. 14 from the stork today, and they haven't any good, plain, old-fashioned name for the little girl he left.

There's John, James, William, Mary, Jennie—and the rest. The father said he's going to put his problem up to the referendum vote of his fellow employes.

HEALTH BOARD PROBES BANQUET

An investigation into the poisoning of forty police officers at a recent banquet in the Back Bay station was started today by the City Board of Health.

Another probe is being conducted by Police Superintendent Michael J. Crowley.

The officials declare they wish to determine just what the banqueters partook of that caused them to become sick. Those at the banquet were inclined to blame a lobster salad, but the caterer insists the salad was all right.

AMERICAN HIT WHEN CHINESE FIRE ON SHIP

Shanghai, Aug. 19.—(By International News Service)—Captain Crum, an American commander of a Dollar line vessel, was slightly wounded when Chinese troops fired upon his ship at Chung-King on the upper Yang-Tse-Kiang, according to information received here today.

The trouble began with an outbreak of fighting between two detachments of soldiers. Two American ships were lying at anchor in the river and some of the soldiers turned their rifles against these vessels.

BETTER TREND IN TEXTILE TRADE

Many Concerns Add to Plants and Equipment to Increase Output

Steadily improving conditions are noticeable among the textile plants of New England, except for those sections in which strikes are in progress. Developments during the past week indicate an early settlement of the principal strikes, either through compromise agreements or because of abandonment of the struggle by the striking employes. Some companies, having secured sufficient employes, have resumed operations on a curtailed scale.

That the outlook for future business is optimistic is shown by the number of plants which are planning, or have already begun, construction of additions to present equipment.

A survey of the industry throughout New England shows that:

AT FITCHBURG, the Parkhill Manufacturing Co., which normally employs 2400, has opened two mills and plans to open a third mill within a week. President R. B. Lowe claims 700 are at work. Labor leaders deny this, and put the total at less than 400.

AT NORTHBRIDGE, the plant of the Paul Whitin Mfg. Co., this past week began working until 8 o'clock each evening to keep up with increasing orders.

AT MANCHESTER, N. H., the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. has reopened its bleachery and dye house.

AT NEWMARKET, N. H., the Newmarket Manufacturing Co., having reached an agreement with its employes for a fifty-hour week with no decrease in wages, will resume operations at once.

AT WESTBROOK, ME., the Haskell Silk Co. has been completely reorganized and will increase production. This is the only broad silk mill in the State. Thomas J. Arnold of Paterson, N. J., is the new president; Philip Dana, president of the Dana Warp Mills, the new treasurer; and Edwin J. Hassell, vice-president.

AT DOVER, N. H., company engineers of the Sawyer Mills of the Dover American Woolen Co. are preparing plans for rebuilding the portion of the mills destroyed in a recent fire. Construction is expected to begin before cold weather.

AT GREENVILLE, R. I., the Nanquit Worsted Co. have awarded a contract to Bowman Brothers of Providence for the erection of a building 55 by 165 feet, in which new looms will be installed. Construction will be started at once.

AT WOONSOCKET, R. I., the Frank Harris Co., announces that it will begin immediately the addition of another story to its present five-story structure. A trestle to facilitate handling of fuel will also be erected.

AT PAWTUCKET, R. I., the Providence Braid Company is receiving bids for the erection of a one-story brick addition.

AT SANFORD, ME., the Sanford Mills have awarded to the Turner Construction Company of Boston, a contract for the erection of a new spinning mill. The new structure will be of reinforced concrete, 1x stories and basement, 85x155. The Turner Construction Co. have also been awarded the contract for the new finishing building which will be of similar construction, four stories, 85x155 feet.

AT PHILLIPSDALE, R. I., the Glenlyon Print Works will erect for use as a storehouse and a lunch room for their workers a one-story brick and concrete structure, 45x75 feet.

Coal Shortage No Peril to Lynn Manufacturers

Lynn, Aug. 19.—Freedom from any danger of a coal shortage has been attained by many local concerns through methods of utilizing their own waste for fuel.

One of these is F. W. Stuart, manufacturer of lasts, who has not burned coal since before the war. The waste wood from the last factory is used for fuel.

The Irving Box Company, makers of packing cases and cartons, is installing a sort of sub-fire box in which its own waste material will be burned to provide steam for the plant.

Hooper, Sprague and Co. have already installed a system for burning their waste, supplemented by fuel oil.

Many other plants along the North Shore are installing oil burning auxiliary equipment and can use either coal or fuel oil.

PAVING AWARDS BREAK RECORD

That this year's business will break all records for the past twenty years is indicated by reports of Warren Brothers Company of this city, manufacturers of Warrenite-Bitulithic Pavement. Contracts awarded up until August 2 totalled nearly 8,000,000 square yards of this pavement material. During July the total awards of Warrenite-Bitulithic aggregated nearly one and one-half million square yards. Judging from the amount of business secured during August, the total for this month will probably be even greater.

It has been computed that the pavement laid by the Warren Brothers Company during the past twenty years would surface a road 4,896 miles long with a thirty foot width from curb to curb.

machines, to take care of increased orders.

AT WESTFIELD, the Abbott Worsted Company will spend approximately $50,000 for the construction of eight single and double houses for employes' residences. The company already owns a number of such dwellings built in former years. Work is now in progress on six apartment houses and four single dwellings, contracts for which were awarded by the company earlier in the year.

AT FALL RIVER, the American Thread Company has awarded to the Aberthaw Construction Company of Boston, the contract for the addition of two stories to increase the output of the mercerizing and bleaching departments. About 54,000 square feet of additional space will be provided.

FIBRE COUNTER BEST, SAYS MALAGUTI

The better conditions prevailing in the shoe industry are reflected in the business of the Columbia Counter Company, manufacturers of leather and fibre counters, with offices at 60 South street, and factories at Waltham and Milan, Italy.

"The tendency on the part of the manufacturer to use better grade materials is largely responsible for the increase in our business," declared Charles D. Malagut, president of the company. "Despite the condition which the public has that only leather counters are good counters, the opposite is more than likely to be true in most cases. Leather counters are usually made from unlast, oak or hemlock tanned bellies or shoulders. Union or oak tanned counters are more flexible than hemlock. A counter made from a really good piece of leather, such as a belly-strip, is so expensive that only about 10 per cent. of the total output is of that grade, and that use is confined mainly to the high est grade Goodyear welt shoes.

"The balance, or ninety per cent of the leather counters used, are heavily treated with glue to make them hard and firm, because they are cut from shanks and shoulder pieces and have a tendency to be soft and punky. Then when the shoes in which they are used are worn in damp or rainy weather these counters will soften and break down.

"Though we manufacture both leather and fibre counters, we unhesitatingly recommend the fibre counter and guarantee our fibre counters to outwear any glue-treated leather counter. By using only the very best grade of fibre board we have been able to build up a big business not only in the United States, but in foreign countries, including Europe, South America, Central America and South Africa. If the man who buys a low-priced or medium-priced shoe, wants to get the best value for his money, he should be sure to ask his dealer for shoes made with fibre counters."

Railroads Lead Strong New York Market with New Highs for 1922 a Feature

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The West is a land of such vast distances and I am trying to cover so much ground that it's sometimes difficult to find opportunity to write this column.

I have just been penetrating to the roof of America, to the heights of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, where the most gigantic hydro-electric enterprises in the whole world is being constructed, and in order to rush through a column in time it will be necessary for me to "left-end" something someone else has written. * * *

The following are extracts from an interview with me published in the San Francisco Examiner by its able financial editor Denis Donohoe:

"B. C. Forbes, a financial writer with the largest list of readers in America, inasmuch as he addresses an audience of 4,000,000 readings daily, through the columns of the Hearst publications, is paying his first visit to San Francisco.

"From his brief talk yesterday it is clear that Forbes readers here-after may expect many illuminating, keen-visioned articles from his facile pen discussing the wonderful opportunities for development which exist in the States bordering on the Pacific.

"In the interview which follows Forbes summarizes, with his own accuracy, the principal requirements of the vast territory which stretches westward from the Rockies.

"'Your biggest need,' he said, 'is more people in the soil.' He proceeded as follows:

"'Traveling westward from Chicago, through the well-cultivated acres of the prairies out to where the farms grow scarcer and more scattered, the thought gripped me of the possibilities which await a denser population, and I began to wonder whether the existing legislation, framed to doom to the broad-shouldered, hard-working white population of Europe, was wise.

"'As for your local problem, of placing the right man on the right land, while I am not familiar with the details, I believe that the California policy of land settlement, as it is being carried out under the able direction of Mortimer Fleishhacker, will go far toward building up the state.

"'Fleishhacker is a practical man, and impresses me as being engaged in a big constructive work. At Kaweah centre, unfortunately, such a man as this too often are left to the guidance of some professional politician. Your wonderful water-power possibilities, with its incalculable potentialities for development of the commerce of the Pacific, hold forth no less than the empire of fertile acres through which the train carried me here.

"'Mainland has access to only two primary sources of wealth—the land and the sea. You have them both. One of the most encouraging features of your life here seems to me to be that your citizens are thoroughly alive to the development of the latent commercial possibilities of the Port of San Francisco.

"'During my trip westward I was greatly impressed also with the good road building going on in the States traversed in my journey.

"'Paved roads are synonymous with advancing civilization. The Romans built them for the convenience of moving their soldiers and military equipment.

"'You, of the Pacific Coast and of other Western States, are building them for your farmers, for the transportation of your products—a far nobler object, I take it. People here in California seem to me to be naturally more manly, more kindly, more imbued with the spirit of real friendliness, than in the teeming, bustling, hustling East.

"'Frankly, you have giants out here. You have here Robert Dollar, who has been conducting the most successful steamship line company of any in the world, during this period of strenuous pressure.

"'Captain Matson, who took over Robert and Mortimer, I estimate as standing in the very first rank of America's able men.

"'John A. Britton and Wigginton Creed have devoted themselves to the upbuilding of a new untapped field of the utility business, which they operate in a thoroughly democratic way, assuring the loyalty of their employees and the satisfaction of their customers.

"'You have Kenneth Ringsbury also, a man of the very first rank, who, although a graduate of one of the oldest engineering schools in the country, began to work to earn his life firing the engine in a pumping station. Today, Ringsbury heads a company which is producing more oil than any other single American company.''

ATCHISON SETS FRESH TOP FOR YEAR

Railroads led a strong week-end market in New York with many new tops for 1922 a feature.

Among the rails which established fresh year's highs were Atchison, Wabash preferred A, Pere Marquette preferred, New York Central, Delaware & Hudson, Illinois Central, Chicago & Eastern Illipois preferred, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul common and preferred, Great Northern preferred, Lehigh Valley, St. Louis & Southwestern, St. Louis & San Francisco, Norfolk & Western, Atlantic Coast Line, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway common and preferred and Union Pacific. Other highs for the current year were made by Allied Chemical, American Sugar, General Electric, Chuett & Peabody, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco B and Lima Locomotive.

A high for all time was registered by American Car & Foundry, up 2 at 117. U. S. Steel touched its top since 1916, made PF(New), American Woolen was strong and active, up 1¾ at 93¾.

Worthington Pump continued its reactionary course by yielding 1¾ points.

COLLATERAL LOANS RATE IS REDUCED

Chicago brokers have received notification from several big banks of a reduction in interest rate on collateral loans from 5 per cent. to 4½ per cent. and 4¾ per cent. This not only indicates easier money but will reflects the large reserves which have accumulated in Chicago district.

BEET SUGAR YIELD IS RUNNING LARGER

Sugar beet districts tributary to Amalgamated Sugar and Utah-Idaho Sugar companies will produce a yield twelve to fourteen tons of beets an acre, against an average of ten tons last year. The white fly devastated some sections last season.

FRENCH COMMODITY PRICES ARE STABLE

Wholesale commodity prices in France remained stable during July, compared with an increase of 2.5 per cent during June. Retail prices decreased 3.2 per cent., compared with a decrease of 3.1 per cent. in June.

BETHLEHEM STEEL TO RAISE CAPITAL

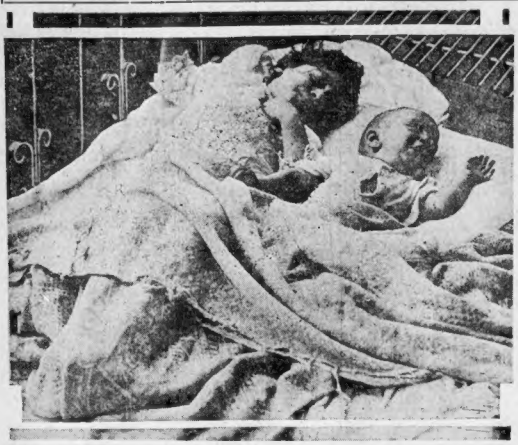
PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS ARE MECCA FOR HUNDREDS OF CHILDREN



BLOW, BREEZES, BLOW! That is the evening prayer of these two little tenement tots asleep on a West End fire escape. These hot, torrid nights whole families seek relief in similar precarious spots. It isn't what you might call solid comfort—but, then, how did you sleep last night yourself? Note the little chap here. Looks like he was mad on Mr. Smith or somebody.

LOOKIN' FOR MOLLA? This young tennis player is only 18 months old, but she packs a mean racquet. She's Violet Shiee and just now she's all set for a little game with her great, big mama for the championship of the family. (Photo by International News Reel)

MOTORISTS, ATTENTION! HEED THE WARNING IN THIS PICTURE WHEN YOU START OUT TOMORROW on Your Sunday Spin! The toll of week-end auto accidents has been unusually large this season. Every Monday morning newspapers have published pictures like the above with accompanying stories telling of tragic deaths in many parts of New England. Some of these fatalities are the result of sheer carelessness or wanton recklessness. Don't let the grim lesson of the picture shown here—the wrecked machine piled up beside the nearby telephone pole—be wasted. Study this picture closely today—and remember it tomorrow! Better be safe than sorry—and it's up to you!

SURE, IT'S A BEAR! But don't run, children! He's all cooped up by the printer and couldn't get offa this page if he wanted to. This playful little fellow is one of the favorites out at the Franklin Park Zoo. Tell your daddy you wanna go out and see him tomorrow! That's it—don't cry!

JAZZING AT NANTASKET TO A BAND ON OLD BROADWAY! YOU CAN take it from the flaps the radio is nothing short of the cat's pajamas. The instrument shown here is the invention of David Grimes, veteran of the American air forces. It operates without aerial or ground connections and catches sounds from great distances. It continues to receive even while being moved from place to place. Flaps are now dancing to it on all of our best beaches. (Photo by International News Reel.)

'MEMBER, FLAPS, WHEN YOU USED TO PLAY THIS YOURSELF? Some of the charming little maids on the Mosart street playground enjoying a game of "Ring Around Rosie." These recreation spots have been more popular than ever this Summer, hundreds of children thronging them daily. Instruction of the little ones in the various games and sports is in the hands of expe-ts, both men and women.

AIN'T SHE IMMENSE! You can almost hear 'em saying it—the ladies. It's Bebe Daniels, film star, displaying a new evening dress of dark red Roman silk. Waist has latest long effect with heavily embroidered silver sequins. Understand us, boys? Well, ask ma—she knows! (Photo by International News Reel).

PITY THE POOR TARGETS IN A CROWD LIKE This! Scene at the army rifle range at Wakefield where some of Uncle Sam's crack shots are engaged in Summer practice. Insets are John Spraker, (left) and A. F. Jones (right), two of the champion shots in the service. Spraker, who is 68 years old, has won 300 medals. Jones proved his prowess by winning the 500-yard rapid fire event.

HERE'S AN AMERICAN CASTLE 300 YEARS OLD! Maybe you didn't know we had one in our midst, but this orta convince you. Castle shown in the picture stands on Heart Island in the St. Lawrence River. It was built by the French just before the British drove 'em out. In their hurry they left the castle and the river behind. (Photo by International News Reel).

SPEAKIN' of Mermaids, Here's One Right Outa the Pond! She's Miss Ruth Harrington, of No. 251 Boston street, Dorchester, winner of today's $5 prize in the Sea Beauty test. A check will be forwarded her at once. Come on, you water nymphs, and hustle along your entries! Time is getting short and the water's getting cold. All you gotta do is mail your picture to the Sea Beauty Editor of the Boston American and await results. He knows more about mermaids right now than Old Man Neptune ever will!

BOSTON TO HARTFORD AND NEW LONDON IS IDEAL AUTO TOUR

ROUTE FILLED WITH INTEREST AND PLEASURE WHILE THE TRIP HOME IS ALONG PICTURESQUE SHORE LINE

By HAROLD E. CASEY.

In the tour which we offer our readers this week they will find every mile filled with interest and pleasure over perfect roads, beautiful scenery, historic shrines, and ocean breezes to make this one continuous trip of enjoyment. The tour is from Boston to pringfield via Worcester thence to Hartford, and New London, Ct., returning on the Shore route via Narragansett Pier and Providence.

BOSTON TO SPRINGFIELD.

14.1 Weston—Turn left; straight ahead Ye Old Boston Post road; continue on same road—the Terrace Garden.

17.5 Wayland—Four corners on left.

"On Ye Olde Boston Post road," just a pleasant half hour's ride from Boston is the new Terrace Garden, justly styled "New England's Wonder Restaurant."

Although Terrace Garden was just opened in the early Summer the resort has proven highly successful from the very beginning.

It has become the rendezvous for the elite, for those who desire and demand nothing but the best in food, cuisine, dancing and music.

Terrace Garden has many novel appointments. The building is new and no expense has been spared to make it pleasurable and comfortable in every way.

SUNKEN DANCE FLOOR.

Terrace Garden boasts of the finest dance floor in New England. It is known as a sunken dance floor, something novel in this part of the country.

Those who appreciate real good music will find an enjoyable evening's entertainment listening and dancing to the music of a marvelous six-piece orchestra.

Terrace Garden provides accommodations for 400 covers.

J. J. Levaggi is president and manager of Terrace Garden. Alfred DiPesa is treasurer. These men, from long experience with a select clientele, have given their best efforts to make Terrace Garden superior in every respect.

Terrace Garden's special dinner is unexcelled. There is a la carte service for those who wish it. Dancing starts at 6:30 p. m. Reservations may be obtained by phoning Wayland 8092.

17.5 Wayland—four corners. Straight ahead to 18.2 South Sudbury — straight ahead across railroad. Longfellow's Wayside Inn is both original and suggestive, as Mrs. E. R. Lemon, the capable hostess, has some admirable ideas as to how an inn of this sort should be conducted and acts accordingly.

OLD STAGE COACHES.

Many of the rooms are just as they were in the days of Longfellow, and some of his manuscripts are framed and hanging on the wall. In fact, there is an unending chain of historic relics and genuine antiques to be seen and the old bar where many of our famous authors gathered to comment on each other's works, is in its original state and two of the old stage coaches that they used are on exhibition in the barn.

There has been added an attractive dining room, where Mrs. Lemon serves lunches, afternoon teas, and dinners, and there are a few rooms to accommodate the over-night tourist. As this inn is open all the year, an adequate heating apparatus has been installed.

Situated on the West end of the house is a spacious sun parlor and as we all love plants and flowers, here is the opportune time to inspect a real old-fashioned garden where you will find a wonderful display of flowers and an old sun dial used as a clock by our ancestors.

On to Marlboro. Situated on the main highway just outside of Marlboro is Waite's Aw Kum On Inn. Here will be found everything for the convenience of the tourist, such as auto accessories, ices, light lunches, rest rooms, etc. In connection with this inn there is a beautiful pine grove and also a fox ranch, where they are exhibiting thirty-four prize Black Silver foxes that are well worth seeing. A charge of ten cents admission to the fox ranch is made, in order to cover cost of caretaker.

FREE CAMP GROUND.

Wilbur M. Waite has opened his pine grove to the public and you are welcome to picnic or camp here free of charge. At stone trough turn left, end of street turn right with trolley to

23.1 Marlboro—Up grade bear left on West Main street, turn right with trolley and follow around Lake Williams straight ahead down grade to

33.6 Northboro—Straight ahead, follow trolley and follow

43.8—Worcester—In this city you will find splendid roads and many historical and interesting things well worth seeing and it is recognized as one of the leading seats of learning on the continent. Here you will find Lake Quinsigamond which is one of the most beautiful bodies of water in New England with miles of charming shore drives

Situated opposite the Common in the heart of the city is the Bancroft Hotel, "a link in the famous hotels of excellence" under the management of Charles S. Averill. Here the tourist will find hospitality personified in a most modern and up-to-date hostelry, superb cuisine.

SPECIAL FEATURE.

A special feature is the dinner dance held every evening at the famous Bancroft Roof Garden.

Straight up Front street to Main, City Hall on left, keep right with trolley to 49.1 Leicester—Top of grade. Straight ahead through Spencer. Straight ahead to 57.6 East Brookfield — Straight ahead across railroad. Curve left at trough.

63.7 West Brookfield — Keep straight ahead and bear left. On the left is the Lake Wichaboag House and cottages.

Tourists stopping here will find large, well furnished rooms commanding a beautiful view of Lake Wichabaug, tempting lunches and appetizing dinners served with dairy products and vegetables from their own farm. This house is under the able management of Mrs. H. H. Niles, who has specialized for many years in catering to the desires of the tourist.

Cross railroad bridge.

67.1—Warren—Cross bridge and bear left up steep grade, through West Warren, passing postoffice on left.

78.5—Palmer—Turn left on Thorndike street and then right bear left down grade to road under construction, one way traffic.

83.8—North Wilbraham. Here is the Auto Inn, where you will find a very attractive and inviting dining room. Here guests are served with luscious lobster, juicy steaks and chicken dinners. Special dinners can also be arranged for. J. J. Sullivan, proprietor, has provided sufficient parking space for all guests.

Turn left under railroad and then right. Bear right down grade. Straight ahead to 94.6—Springfield. Situated on the Connecticut River, the largest and most beautiful river in New England. Across the valley can be seen the famous Berkshire Hills. Springfield is noted for its pretty drives, open squares with plain fountains, beautiful suburbs and its Forest PARK, which though not so large as Central Park, will compare favorably with it in many respects.

Taking its place among the essential institutions and appealing alike to the visitor from out of town as well as the dweller in Springfield, is the Hotel Bridgway. A modern complete hotel of 150 rooms, each with private bath, each room furnished and equipped with the finest material present-day manufacturers can supply. Its various departments under the direction of skilled men and women, and all under the personal supervision of the New management, whose experience enables them to meet the most exacting requirements of the patron of the best class of hotels.

Particular attention is given the preparation and service of food. Only the best quality is brought into the hotel and, combined with excellence in cooking, intelligence and care in serving and the agreeable environment of a quiet, well-appointed dining room, we are enabled to satisfy the fastidious taste of the most particular.

Pleasing music in charge of competent musicians is made an agreeable complement to lunch or dinner, and well-selected programs for concerts in the evening add to the enjoyment of one's visit. Dinner dance every Saturday evening until midnight.

SPRINGFIELD TO N. LONDON.

0.0 Go south on Main street, turning right at stone trough end of street, turn left, meeting trolley, straight ahead through Longmeadow, Thompsonville, Enfield, South Windsor. (This is an unusually straight and good road and affords the tourist ample opportunity to observe the immense tobacco fields in this section

26.03 Straight ahead to East Hartford.

30.4—Hockanum — Three corners bear left.

22.7 Glastonbury — Bear left straight ahead on main highway. (Here you will find forty six miles of straight granolithic road, some long, steep grades, but beautiful scenery.)

Through Colchester, Salem, Chesterfield to 70.3 New London, a maritime city, rich in quaint reminders of its historic past and a very popular vacation resort.

A short drive on Pequot avenue, just outside of the heart of New London, is the Pequot Manor, a well-managed hotel, catering to the better element of society, guests who appreciate good service in every respect and a charming environment among people of character.

Its location is superb, commanding an unobstructed view of the Sound and deriving all the benefits of the ocean breezes. Across the river from the city lies Eastern Point, in Groton, a cottage colony with handsome Summer homes, resembling those of Newport.

FINE GOLF COURSE.

Here you will find the Hotel Griswold, one of America's most famous resort hotels, overlooking Long Island Sound, known as the yachting playground of America. Its safe and beautiful harbor is ever dotted with yachts and pleasure boats of all kinds, from the racing sculls of competing colleges to the most beautiful private steamers.

The Griswold boasts of its unsurpassed service and cuisine, splendid appointments, no expense being spared in making it modern and up-to-date in the most minute detail. All rooms are furnished in mahogany, lighted by electricity and have long-distance telephones, a la carte service in the new grill room.

NEW LONDON TO BOSTON VIA SHORE ROUTE.

Cross long toll bridge over Thames River end of bridge, turn right, straight ahead through Groton three corners. Turn left, then right, cross bridge through Stonington. Straight ahead to 18.8 Westerly, R. I.—Cross bridge end of street, turn right, turn left on School street, up steep grade—straight grade.

30.2 Charlestown, R. I.—Here is an old historic landmark—Stanton Hall—now called General Stanton Inn. It was known as early as 1796. General Joseph Stanton raised funds and erected a school building which he afterwards enlarged and fitted up for a dwelling house.

This building underwent several improvements and about 1810 the house received the addition of a store and hall and from that year onward to the time when the cars and steamboats were brought into use it was a tavern of no small importance.

Here many of the important men of the country met, as it was the most direct route between Providence and New London and nearly midway between the two cities. Today the Stanton Inn is an up-to-date inn, catering to tourists, serving chicken, steak and lobster dinner. It is especially noted for its individual service. Straight ahead.

BACK TO BOSTON.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

NEW TENNIS WONDER GIRL PLAYS FAMOUS MOLLA FOR TITLE

MAID OF 16 IN LINE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 19 (By the Associated Press).—A demure, sun-kissed miss of sixteen California Summers, Miss Helen Wills, stands today at the threshold of an opportunity before which youth is permitted to serve once in a generation.

All week she has been knocking with a steady tap-tap that yesterday threw the door ajar. Today she must muster every vestige of nerve, every ounce of steadiness, every bit of cleverness she has to throw back the panel, to walk in and occupy the throne of woman's tennis champion of the nation.

Seated there today, as she sat these last five years, is Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, wielding the sceptre with an imperiousness that has frightened off other usurpers before their task was begun. An American by marriage, she is a Norse woman born with all the uncompromising determination of the Viking vibrant in her every move.

In other times and at other places in the arena of sport youth has met maturity in its own castle and triumphed—but in this instance the parallel falls short. Mrs. Mallory, though a veteran in the game, is not old and cannot be cast in the role of "age." Miss Wills is but a child and her precocity places her in the gallery of prodigies.

Has Played Tennis Only Four Years

The young Californian has been handling a racquet less than four years; she is facing her first big crowd and is exhibiting for the first time before expert critics. Mrs. Mallory has one victory out of three matches with Miss Suzanne Lenglen. The champion, impervious by nature to the fancies of the crowds, is thoroughly at home in an international contest.

Mrs. Mallory has extraordinary strength and stamina for a woman, but Miss Wills, muscular and sinewy, is not a lily stalk. There is tremendous power in every drive that comes steaming from the Norse woman's racquet and she has years of experience with the most facile players of the world to draw upon. Miss Wills has an allaround game, incompletely developed, but with no glaring weaknesses, her best hope is her steadiness and her perplexing "change of pace."

Despite these wide differences in style and the aggregation of advantages that Mrs. Mallory possesses, Miss Wills goes on the court today considered in the parlance of sport to have "an outside chance." She was not expected to win yesterday from Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles, and Mandy was not quite sure winner the day before from Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del.

Girl Player Is Favorite with Spectators

The galleries yesterday sensed the impending. The crowd applauded every point scored by Miss Wills, but Mrs. Bundy had to move heaven and earth to draw a shower of clapping. The result was an upset for the dopester; it may have been certain for the loser, who though still a young woman, is past her best tennis form. She unqualifiedly was deposed from her high ranking.

The doubles today, in which Miss Wills and Mrs. Mallory also will meet on opposite sides of the court, is more in doubt than the singles. Miss Wills has a stronger partner in Mrs. Jessup than Mrs. Mallory has in Miss Elida Rice-Stevens of Boston, who is a cautious, unspectacular player.

The clash of personalities will come in the singles match, but a shade less colorful than last year when Miss Mallory met and defeated Miss Lenglen on the same courts. The tennis world, like those of other sports, grows tired of old idols—but cheers the winner.

"I may take a few games tomorrow, but I don't expect to win," Miss Wills told the Associated Press when leaving the court yesterday. "But," she added wistfully, "I didn't expect to win today. It really was a big surprise for me. Yes, it's the biggest thing I ever did in tennis."

Here her mother took charge and they whisked away.

WARE WINS OUT IN THE NINTH INNING

Staging a brilliant ninth-inning rally, Ware came from behind at Russell Field and trimmed North Cambridge, 5 to 3. There were two on the sacks and one down when Nichols, batting for Zink, slammed a three-bagger. Tubber Cronin dropped a Teague leaper and Nichols came in. Hogan, a spit ball hurler, held Leahy's pets in their half of the ninth by fanning all three men.

Batcheider pitched grand ball up to the ninth.

MEDFORD HAS A DATE WITH CORNETS

The Medford City Team will journey to the Little River playgrounds, Lynn, this afternoon where they will meet the Cornet All Stars in the only Twilight League tussle staged today.

This should be a rattling good attraction for the Shoe City fans who appreciate the half holiday looking at the semi-pro clubs on the different baseball orchards.

The visitors have got "through" with the majority of the so called ball stars and are traveling at a pretty good clip with a few younger boys in harness. Already this week they managed to slip over a win along with a tie game.

This should be a sterling game as the Cornet Club must win all the battles from now on to get back on top of the ladder. It hurt the Shoe City folks to see them lose the infant league league as they thought sure that they would have the chance to tackle the North Cambridge Knights for the title.

Manager "Howie" Fahey will most likely put either Collins or John Price on the rubber for Medford, while Jose Morrissey will use Walton Merritt or Strickler.

McMAHON ONE OF CANADA'S BEST

This is William J. "Bill" McMahon, one of the liveliest gents in all Canada. Bill is trying to do for others what others do for themselves, to have a good time and not worry.

William J. "Bill" McMahon

Many Boston teams have had successful trips through New Brunswick and Canada this season due to his efforts. McMahon was the promoter of the trips and is manager of the largest and most up-to-date baseball park in eastern Canada.

He has booked such teams as Newburyport, Somerville baseball club, Auburns of Cambridge, Casey's Neponset All Stars, Lefty Ford's Quincy team and South Boston All Stars. Every manager on his return from the trip has praised McMahon for his fair treatment.

Newburyport is now touring Canada for the second time this season. Eddie Carr's Auburns of Cambridge left yesterday and Casey's Neponset All Stars will leave September 1 on a two weeks' tour.

GILDEA IS ASSISTANT COACH AT FITCHBURG

Fitchburg, Aug. 19.—At a special meeting of the school committee this afternoon Dennis Gildea, of Holy Cross College, was elected assistant coach and instructor of physical training in the high school to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Arthur S. Harrington.

HARTLEY-DARCY GO AT WOONSOCKET

Woonsocket, R. I. Aug. 19.—Matchmaker Leo Bradley has lined up Pete Hartley of New York and Johnny Darcy of New Jersey for the main bout at his Clinton Oval next Monday night.

Casey Leaders Clash

Dedham K. of C. and Jamaica Plain Council team will meet this afternoon at the John W. Murphy playground, Jamaica Plain. They are first and second, respectively, in the K. of C. league standing.

CHAMP NIGHT AT REVERE TRACK

Tonight is champion night at the Revere Open Track, with four champions and one ex-champion in their respective style of racing due to race.

Foremost in interest is the initial appearance of Willie Spencer, recent winner of the American sprint title. He will oppose Alfred Goullet, the steady king, in a special match.

Ray Eaton, winner of the U. S. A. crown in 1919, is slated to ride the youthful Hans Ohrt, who made such a brilliant record in Europe last year. Then all four will line up for a one-mile scratch race.

For the lovers of paced riding a classic from the French calender of names, the Bol d'Or (Bowl of Gold), a fifty-mile contest will be staged.

For this event Manager Butler has selected the four riders who are occupying the leading positions in points scored this year. They are Clarence Carman, Victor Linart, George Chapman and Frank Carry.

ST. WILLIAM'S IS AFTER REVENGE

Savin Hill fans who witnessed the game betw e e n St. Will a m ' s and Catholic Club of Dorchester and the Fellsmere Catholic Club of Malden, won by the latter, will not fail to be present at the next game of the series tomorrow afternoon at Savin Hill Playground.

"Todo" Welch, who pitched the first game, has been groomed for this contest.

The fortunate spectators of tomorrow's event are in for some red hot baseball.

Arlington Pistol Match

The postponed pistol match, opened in the series between the Arlington Rifle Club and the Arlington Sportsmen, will be shot this afternoon at the former's range. This was the government 45-calibre automatic revolvers will be used. The officers won the first match.

Skilton Still on Move

Jack Gillis, Raymie Skilton, George Twombley and "Chippo" Ogw, who deserted the second ball of the Twilight League season with Medford City Club, are no longer with the latter, Skilton and Twombley have hooked on with the Redmond Pros.

TOMMY MALLINSON WHIPS BILL CARNEY

New Bedford, Aug. 19.—Billy Carney, the tough New Bedford welterweight, took a sound thrashing at the hands of Tommy Mallinson, an English lightweight sojourning in this city, at the Arena A. C.

The Englishman took every round except the ninth, when Carney rallied for a spell. Mallinson pounded Carney's pantry with both hands, shook him up with short left jolts to the head and handed him a decisive licking.

In the semi-winding of ten rounds Charley Manty beat Pete Roy to a finish.

GREB READY TO BOX TUNNEY AGAIN

By ED CURLEY.

New York, Aug. 19.—Harry Greb watched Gene Tunney conquer Charlie Weinert in one of the most ferocious scraps ever held in Newark. Harry took the trip for it meant that he will be found fighting Tunney before many days. The light heavyweight champion announced before the fray that he would meet the winner, and as Tunney came home in first place, it means he will get an opportunity to regain his title.

Tunney surprised the crowd by his aggressiveness. For some three Tunney whipped all his men through sheer cleverness. He hesitated when it came to slugging, and always acted as if he were anything but bloodthirsty.

In his bout with Greb, Tunney received a fierce mauling and, with the dethronement, it appears to have transformed him into a real fighter. Gene tore right in after the Newark Adonis and made it a fight right from the opening gong. It was entirely different from the style he displayed against Greb.

Tunney will continue fighting steadily. Next Thursday he will be found in the Phillies' baseball park battling Tommy Loughran. Loughran fought Greb a few weeks ago and created a big hit, which means he will give Tunney plenty of action.

Pal Moran will fight Harry (Kid) Brown the same evening. Eny France, aspirant to Benny's royal ermine, will meet George Chaney.

NO. CAMBRIDGE AT HAVERHILL

The North Cambridge Knights of Columbus will tackle King Bader's crack Haverhill pros at Haverhill. Manager Dan Leahy says that Bader may throw any kind of a ball or do whatever he wishes with the well-known onion outside of the Greater Boston Twilight League. But when it comes to hurling in the infant league the "shine-ball" is forbidden.

On Sunday afternoon the North Cambridge club will be back at Russell Field, where they will entertain the Medford City Team.

This diamond tussle should just about pack the North Cambridge ball orchard, as both teams are of Class "A" calibre.

Indiana Governor Says No Prize Fight On Labor Day

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—Governor McCray declared that the Dempsey-Brennan fight must not be held at Michigan City, Ind., Labor Day. The Governor says the proposed match would be a prize fight, barred by the State law, and not a boxing match or exhibition.

The fact that seats sold at $27.30 was evidence it was not merely a boxing match, the Governor said. He ordered Sheriff W. F. Austin of Michigan City to stop the fight if the promoter attempts to hold it.

RHODE ISLAND KENNEL SHOW OPENS

What promises to be the greatest Rhode Island Kennel Club dog show in years opens today in Freebody Park, Newport. More than 500 dogs, representing all breeds of the present day, will be on their benches when Supt. Chas. E. O'Connor opens the doors for this one-day American Kennel Club licensed annual fixture.

The judging will be in the tent where all dogs are benched, thus giving the spectators a chance to witness the spectacle without leaving the tent.

The popular breeds continue to hold leadership. The shepherd dogs (better known as police dogs) will furnish the feature exhibit. Peking ese have set a record for their breed and many of the best owned are entered. Dandie Terriers have made a great showing.

Plans have been made to take care of a large attendance of what's who in the dog world of New England.

Busses will meet the trains leaving Providence at 6:30 a. m. and 8 a. m. at the Newport station and carry exhibitors to the show grounds. Dogs will be allowed on the busses.

GOLF EXHIBITION AT NEWPORT

Jesse Guilford

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Tuffys Taller has extended an invitation to all the members of the Wanumetonomy Golf and Country Club to be present at the Ocean Links Sunday afternoon when Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford of Massachusetts, former national champions and George Rotan of Texas will give an exhibition and play on the famous course.

PRELIMINARIES FOR DUNDEE-MARTIN BOUT

New York, Aug. 19.—The preliminaries to the Dundee-Martin contest at the New York Velodrome on August 25 were arranged yesterday. Pete Hartigy meets Andy Thomas in the semi-final of twelve rounds at 135 pounds. The six-rounder will bring together Hughie Hutchison and Jimmy Conney at 126 pounds. The opener will be betwen Jimmy Kirk and Nick Scanlon.

Dundee will be the favorite, but there are those who figure Pepper will make Johnny step fast.

MALDEN CASEYS BEAT ST. JOSEPH'S

Malden Knights of Columbus, with Bill Gannon, former Huntington School twirler, at the helm, took the St. Joseph's Catholic Association team into camp at Ferrywav Field, Malden, in last night's only Twilight League encounter. The winners furnished the feature of the battle when Lowenstein, with men on second and third, scored the pair with a Texas Leaguer on a hit-and-run play.

SPANISH NET TEAM AT CHESTNUT HILL

BUDDY JACKSON IS ONLY A SETUP

By JACK CONWAY.

Say it with flowers!

That's how the Harry Wills-Buddy Jackson bout looks to this writer.

It's a bankroll match. Wills and his manager will do well out of the affair. So will the promoter, while Jackson and those interested in him will receive enough cash to carry them over Thanksgiving Day.

The show would be perfect if it were announced that a part of the profits (usually about one-tenth of 1 per cent.) would go to charity.

Anyhow, the bout takes place at Newark Monday night. Wills is taking about as great a risk as a sharpshooter would if he were to engage in a duel with a kid armed with a cap pistol.

But as fighters, their managers and promoters must live, let's have a little jazz music and let the cruel battle go on.

Bidding for Dempsey-Wills Bout is Now Under way

This is the open season for bids for the Dempsey-Wills bout. A new club, which will hold forth at the Polo Grounds, has Wills' consent to battle for 12½ per cent. of the gross receipts and has offered the champion 37½ per cent. New York has a very sensible law which forbids a boxing club paying the main bout more than 50 per cent. of the gross receipts.

It is believed, though, that Rickard has the Dempsey-Wills match sewed up. Rickard gave Dempsey the chance to battle Willard for the championship. He also put over the Dempsey-Carpentier match. Jack Kearns and Dempsey realize their obligation to Tex. They also have perfect confidence in his ability to put over anything he attempts. It doesn't matter a great deal whom Wills desires for a foe mater. He will fight for whoever Kearns and Dempsey say.

And they will probably toss this pugilistic plum to Rickard.

Hambone Kelly to get Shot at Wilson.

Marty Killilea is expected to agree to a Wilson-Kelly bout within a few days. The match will be staged under the direction of the Area A. C. and should draw a tremendous crowd.

Although Hambone has never appeared in a main bout, there are many fans who believe that he will stop the middleweight champion if he can score with a right hand punch to the jaw. The South Boston puncher has toppled over twenty-six opponents and figures he can also dispose of Wilson.

It will be a colorful match and should furnish plenty of thrills while it lasts. Even though Wilson should win in a few rounds, he'll know that he's been in a battle. Nobody can afford to take too many liberties once Kelly starts tossing his hambones around.

George Robinson also on Champion's Trail.

George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight, who has already engaged in a couple of rugged battles in a row, would like to get another shot at the title holder. Jim MacDonald says he has a club which is willing to guarantee Wilson $12,500 for a match with his protege. MacDonald issued the following statement today:

"Now that Johnny Wilson is prepared to defend his title in the ring, George Robinson of Cambridge should get first consideration. Robinson has engaged in two great fights with Wilson since the latter dethroned Mike O'Dowd.

"Robinson defeated Wilson at Montreal, scoring two knockdowns, but didn't win the championship on account of the fact that no decision is rendered in the Canadian city. At the Boston Arena last Summer Robinson knocked Wilson down again and would have won the title if he had not been prevented from doing infighting by the referee.

"Wilson says he will fight if offered proper inducements. I have discussed the matter with a Boston club which is prepared to offer Wilson $12,500 for a match to be staged in September.

"Hambone Kelly, I understand, is also after Wilson. If Hambone really thinks he can fight, I'll sign Robinson to meet him, and let the winner take on Wilson."

NAVY FIGHTERS WINNERS IN TWO BOUTS

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—At Freebody Park John A. McDonald gave the second of his boxing exhibitions and the big park was again filled to capacity with fans. As there were well-known navy men on the card, a large crowd from the Atlantic fleet was on hand.

The opening bout of six rounds in the welterweight class was between King Douglass of the United States steamship Shawmut and Jack Lewis of the torpedo station. Lewis went to the mat in the second round with a smash to the body.

The next was an eight-round bout between Law Fisher of the United States steamship Wyoming and Kid Jones of the torpedo station. They were a snappy pair and pleased the navy men fans as well as the women fans who were out quite strong.

Round one was Fisher's. In the second the crowd was getting noisy, telling Jones to get at him as that round, too, went to Fisher. Round three was a slugging match, the fans telling Kid Jones to cover up. It was even. The fourth round was a whirlwind, with the crowd getting boisterous urging their favorites. Honors were about even. The fifth round was Jones'. In the sixth both stood up well under terrific punishing that pleased the fans hugely. It was the sailor's round, the Kid taking fearful punishment. He went to the count in the seventh round, but saved himself at the count of eight. It was Fisher's round. The eighth was a battle for gore. It was Fisher's battle, though the Kid was game.

MANN CROSSES UP DOUGLAS IN BASEBALL SCANDAL NOTE

CARDINAL STAR DENIES RECEIVING LETTER

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19 (By the Associated Press).—Leslie Mann, outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, early today added a new angle to the case of "Shufflin' Phil" Douglas, New York Giants' pitcher, who was barred from organized baseball for writing a letter to a player of a "contending team" offering to desert the Giants and thus hinder their chances for winning the pennant, when he flatly denied he had received the letter. Douglas stated in New York last night he had written to Mann.

Expressing surprise when told by a reporter that Douglas had named him as the player to whom he had written offering to "throw down" the New York team if it was "worth my while," Mann also denied that he held any telephone conversation with the New York pitcher. Douglas said in his New York statement he telephoned Mann at Boston and requested him to tear up the correspondence.

Mann declared that he always had known Douglas to be "on the square," and expressed surprise that the Giant hurler had been found guilty of the act for which he was barred from the national pastime by Manager John J. McGraw, and K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner.

Branch Rickey, manager of the Cardinals, would neither deny nor affirm Douglas' statement that he wrote to Mann.

Nothing whatever to say, was the manner in which he replied to a question.

Other officials of the club, including Bi Mason, vice-president, and Clarence Lloyd, secretary, also refused to discuss the matter.

Douglas Tells His Side of Story

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.)

New York, Aug. 19.—The Boston American today tells exclusively the "flim' Phil Douglas' own version of what he [illegible] the TRUE and COMPLETE story of the events leading up to his expulsion from the ranks of organized baseball.

The former Giant pitcher was prostrated and in bed in the little apartment he calls his home at No. 146 West Seventy-seventh.

The one to is story unparalleled in the history of the game. He denied to the first time the player whom it had been charged he had written a letter offering to quit the Game for a consideration.

He admits he wrote the letter.

Then as he unwinds the thread of story which shocked the baseball world and almost killed the Giants' hopes of a pennant, he names Leslie Mann, the St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, as the player to whom he wrote the letter which brought about his expulsion from baseball in Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

The letter written by Douglas was made public in Chicago by Judge Landis. It reads:

"I want to leave here. I don't want to see this guy win the pennant. I know I can pitch, and I am afraid if I stay I will win the pennant for him.

"Talk this over with the boys, and if it is all right send the goods to my house at night and I will go to a fishing camp. Let me know if you want to do this and I will go home on the next train.

"But Judge Landis did not give credence to which led to Douglas' expulsion.

[illegible] as given by Douglas [illegible] are as follows:

"I finished the last game [illegible] on July 31 he went [illegible] friend.

"I got back [illegible] and went to sleep.

"Next [illegible] detectives [illegible] broke into the room and attempted to drag him out.

"I was [illegible] assisted 'em," says Douglas.

The [illegible] then threatened to [illegible] in Douglas' car, and before he was able to dress and [illegible] he was dragged down [illegible] to an [illegible] in which three [illegible] were passed out.

"When I came to I am in a sanitarium. They give me knockout stuff and wouldn't let me telephone my wife.

"I swear I never threw a ball game. I was always doing my best.

"They've just got this letter on me. I ain't concealin' nothin'. I just don't know what to do. I've been put in a terrible fix—I'm ruined, and all I can do is to tell the whole story."

Mrs. Douglas, a mild mannered woman like Douglas, has been prostrated by his expulsion from baseball.

"I don't believe they understand," she said. "God knows I've tried to keep him away from liquor.

TAKEN TO SANITARIUM.

He was taken to the 135th street station house and then to a sanitarium on Central Park West. This was on Tuesday, August 1. He [illegible] was taken from him and he was locked in a cell there, he says, and remained the following Saturday.

It is [illegible]nwhile, he avers, he had been fined $100 and five days pay [illegible]. He had also been given [illegible] for his treatment in the sanitarium and cab fare. This amounted to $224.50.

Saturday, he says, that he had been "fired" by McGraw, he [illegible] Mann, who was then in Boston, with the Cardinals, the letter which was made public in Chicago yesterday.

After writing this letter McGraw called him to his office in the club house at the Polo Grounds and had a long talk with him.

He called me everything—names ain't repeat here, but when he got through I realized I was still with the Giants and had not been fired.

That night, at 7.30, Mrs. Douglas put in a long distance call to Boston for Mann. It was reported Mann was not in his room, but the operator made a telephone appointment for 9 o'clock with Mann, and at 9 Douglas says, he spoke to Mann.

"I asked him please to tear up the letter and told him I hadn't been fired."

MANN SHOWED LETTER.

Douglas says Mann agreed to do this, but instead showed it to Branch Rickey, the Cardinal manager, who immediately communicated the contents to McGraw, Judge Landis and John Tener, president of the National League.

On his arrival in Pittsburgh Douglas says, Dr. William Bender, the Giant's club physician, called at the Douglas apartment and gave Douglas a hypodermic to quiet him. This was repeated Sunday and Monday, and on Monday night Douglas left Pittsburgh with Jess Burkett, his "chaperone."

On his arrival in Pittsburgh, Douglas was called to McGraw's room. Besides McGraw, Judge Landis, James Tierney, business manager of the Giants, and a woman, whose name Douglas does not know, were present.

Judge Landis, he says, did most of the talking, and at the conclusion of the interview turned to McGraw and told the Giants' manager he couldn't use Douglas any more.

And as Douglas, a human wreck, told his story to the writer, he charged that he had not been allowed to present his side of the case in full detail.

"I was in this position," he said. "I thought I was through with the Giants when they fined me and tried to make me pay the Sanitarium bill, and suspended me. I ain't got no other way of earnin' a livin' and I was sore. McGraw had ridden me hard. He called me everything. I had to do something for a livin' and I wrote Mann.

TROUBLE SELLING HIM.

"He crossed me when he didn't tear up that letter—he crossed me. I ain't got nothin' much against Mann. He was my own fault. I ain't complainin'. The thing is for him to me. I haven't had a solid night's sleep since I pitched my last game. But they ain't seen my side of it—I didn't realize what I was doin'. I know that ain't no excuse, but God had been practically kidnaped while I was drunk, threatened with a blackjackin', taken to a police station and then passed out.

"When I come to I am in a sanitarium. They give me knockout stuff and wouldn't let me telephone my wife.

"I swear I never threw a ball game. I was always doing my best.

"They've just got this letter on me. I ain't concealin' nothin'. I just don't know what to do. I've been put in a terrible fix—I'm ruined, and all I can do is to tell the whole story."

Mrs. Douglas, a mild mannered woman like Douglas, has been prostrated by his expulsion from baseball.

"I don't believe they understand," she said. "God knows I've tried to keep him away from liquor.

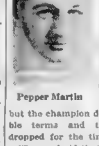
WINNER MAY FIGHT THE CHAMPION

New York, Aug. 19.—Matchmaker Frank Flournoy of the Velodrome and the Garden is anxious to get Johnny Kilbane for a bout between Johnny and the winner of the Pepper Martin - Johnny Dundee bout. Dundee has posted $1,000 forfeit for the Martin match on August 28. When here last every effort was made to have Kilbane agree to a match with either Martin or Dundee, but the champion demanded impossible terms and the matter was dropped for the time being.



Pepper Martin

"I am afraid that Kilbane will not agree to a match in New York," said Flournoy. "He is under the impression that the Boxing Commission and all the officials under its power are striving to take his title away, and if he agrees to box at all I expect that he will insist on going on in Jersey."

JOHNSTON SHOWS RIVAL FINE POINTS OF TENNIS

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19 (By the Associated Press).—Henri Cochet, soldier of France, sailing from New York today to shoulder a musket again after wielding a tennis racquet in international play, is taking back with him lessons that may mean much to the future of his country in tennis.

The old school of French players has virtually passed out. Hopes for success lie in the youth of France and young Cochet, best of these, although champion of his country and of the world on hard courts in his twentieth year, yet lacks one or two of the elements essential to well rounded play.

Service is his principal weakness. It is so soft that in all his play in the United States he has not scored an ace.

It is tactically sound, experts have said, yet lacks the drive to make it effective. Small in stature, Cochet is at a disadvantage in trying to equal the services of a Tilden or of a Patterson, yet he feels it is in him to approach them closely.

As indication of the manner in which he has applied himself to this end was observed an incident at the Casino courts here yesterday. Cochet had played three hard sets in doubles, defeating past about to victory because of his enforced departure today. He had dressed and was carrying his bag away when he saw "Little Bill" Johnston.

For four days he had watched "Little Bill" a man of eight frame battle through a field of three-score players to victory.

To serve as well as "Little Bill" was his aim and at the point of departure the little French soldier asked Johnston to show him more clearly how he attains seventy of service not withstanding his small size.

"Little Bill" smiled, borrowed a racquet and a brace of balls and, while Cochet watched intently the relation of forefoot and of the foot behind, of body poise, arm swing ball toss and racquet drive, went through the motions of service time and again.

For fully an hour he served "by the numbers," as they say in the army to indicate that each motion is carried out with a pause between to make it distinct.

A gallery gathered, an exchange of views was had, but Cochet remained intent on his ideal and instructor, missing not a of the lessons that he is carrying back to France.

"If he could get a good service he'd beat any of us," one player of high rank remarked the day Cochet defeated O'Hara Wood for France's only victory over Australia in the Davis Cup preliminaries competition. And young Cochet apparently expects to leave no move undone to get that good service.

LEONARDO LIKELY SWIM WINNER

Bobby has been training like a beaver at North End Park for the race. Daily swims to Warren Bridge against time have been the menu.

GIRL OLYMPIC STARS CLASH TOMORROW

Paris, Aug. 19 (By the Associated Press).—Seventy-seven women athletes, representing five countries, will compete in what is generally described as "the first women's Olympics" at Pershing Stadium Sunday.

These figures were made known officially today after the arrival in Paris of the Swiss and Czecho-Slovak teams and after word was received that the English team had left London for Paris and announcement of the default of the Belgian team.

The United States and Panama have entered a team of fifteen, the members of which will be numbered 1 to 15. England has thirteen entered, numbered 16 to 28; Czecho-Slovakia ten, numbered 29 to 38 Switzerland seven, numbered 39 to 45, and France, thirty-two, numbered 46 to 77.

Not one single French entry will be called upon to compete in more than one event, and there are two girls available as substitutes, while the English, Swiss, Czecho-Slovak and American girls are entered in one, two, three and in some cases four events. The Swiss have declined to enter the sprint, jump and relay, confining themselves to compete in the javelin and shot put events, where they are conceded to have the best chance.

FIGHT GAME IS SCORED BY PASTOR

Northfield, Aug. 21—The world is nearing the edge of brute force when 100,000 persons will pay for the privilege of witnessing a prize fight, declares Rev. Samuel H. Woodrow, pastor of the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, at the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Union Institute.

"The aristocracy of brawn holding that might makes right has failed lamentably in recent catastrophes of enormous life sacrifice," he said, "but we cannot outlive it in an age of prize fights."

Salem Battles Gloucester

Gloucester All Stars, under the guidance of "Stuffy" McInnis' brother, will play the Salem Town Team at Gloucester tomorrow afternoon.

'KID' LEE TOYS WITH 'GENE' DELMONT

Worcester, Aug. 19.—George Kid Lee of Worcester, toyed with Gene Delmont of Memphis Lee had the first, third, four, fifth, sixth, seventh and tenth rounds while the second, eighth and ninth were even. Lee's dancing tactics puzzled Delmont who wasn't able to touch him. Lee also had the better of the inside fighting and when they swapped blows, Lee landed three to Delmont's one.

Delmont's antics turned the crowd against him and in the third round Referee Billy George stopped the fight to admonish him against low blows.

Lee had Delmont groggy in the sixth, but was unable to finish him. Cries of "Make 'Em Fight" were raised in the fifth and Delmont picked up in the last three rounds, but not enough to overcome Lee's big lead.

Irish Kid Williams of Holyoke lost to Young Riley of Worcester in the eight-round semi-final. Young Donahue of Worcester won from Kid Philips of Newton in the six rounder that went the distance, and Bill Shannon of Lynn secured a technical knockout over Billy White of Boston in the third round of a scheduled six rounder.

HOPES THAT JACK SEES THE BOUT

Harry Wills, who is matched to fight Jack Dempsey for the world's title, is now anxious to meet the champion as soon as the latter is ready. Wills figures that as the Brennan match is not to be prohibited he and the champion can arrange their clash to be staged within the next few months before the outdoor season is over. Wills is getting ready for his

WOULD YOU?

Jill Carden, a beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. She was seventeen, motherless and much sought after by reason of her great wealth, which, however, disappeared when her father's will was read. After getting a position as traveling companion she finds herself at Suez. She gets her first glimpse of Hahmed, the Camel King, and tosses a coin to decide whether she shall speak to him or go back to England. "Mary"

ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Elenore Meherin

Start This New Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. The next deal concluded, she expects another bonus check, but finds it is for only $30. While she is debating whether she will resign, MRS. HALL DAWSON enters and tries to find out Mary's regard for her employer. Mary's adviser is her sister, JUNE. Now go on with the story.

"WHEN we were girls, Nell, we didn't run out every night. Seldom seen is much admired—that's the way we were brought up. Mary has plenty of time. And when Mr. Wright comes along he'll find her, even if she's tucked away in a handbox," remarked Ma.

"Indeed, not; not in these days, Ma Kelly! You've got to advertise. Get wised up, Mary. You can pick off Jack if you want him. He's strong for you.

"And what about Bill Riley? Going down to meet him tomorrow? Raft of the fellows coming in with the Yankee Division. You're to see the parade. You're going!"

Of course, we won't be satisfied. "I wouldn't have you girls miss it for a mint. It's a day in a life."

I wasn't going to meet Bill [illegible] filled with excitement over the homecoming of the soldiers. Dad and June and Uncle were going together. Angelo was to take June and me.

It was nearly 9 o'clock when we reached Dewey square.

"Let's get off here and walk up," Angelo took each of us by the arm. "We're likely to lose each other. If we do we'll meet at the Park Street church. Now remember."

People were rushing like mad to see the boys come home from Camp Devens, where they had been since arriving from the war. Suddenly all the bands struck up the chords of "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here!" The crowd broke. I was pushed to the edge of the with the crowd. It was Pat Sullivan, the boy that sat behind me at school: the boy that did my examples for me; the boy I was in love with at grammar school.

The mobs were pushing me towards him. I was at his elbow.

"Hello, Pat!" I touched his sleeve.

He looked down at me. His eyes lighted up.

"Mary! Mary Kelly!"

I don't know how it happened. We seemed swept together. He caught me in his arms. He kissed me. I was never so happy in my life.

"Mary, little Mary! I can't believe it!" His whole face was a smile. "I never dreamed I'd see you here. The only one in all this mass that knew me, Mary! Gee, this is great!"

I hurried along with him. I didn't feel the crowds pressing about me. I couldn't speak, I was so stunned with joy.

"Is it true, Pat?"

"Is it true, Mary?" He laughed back at me.

It didn't seem real. It was like a dream. Pat Sullivan that I hadn't seen in ten years. Pat Sullivan that used me to promise I'd marry him when he grew up.

"Not a soul here to see me but you, Mary," he repeated. "Here; hold my arm."

It was too late. A mounted policeman, nudging his horse's flanks against the crowd nearly rode over me. I was shoved back. The crowd closed again. I saw Pat standing there. Two girls saw him, too.

"Pat Sullivan," their high voices came to me—they dashed out, their hands extended. I watched in a panic of alarm. Would he kiss them, too? Was he that kind? I saw his tall form towering above the crowd. His head didn't bend. I could have cried with gladness. The sea of people rolled on. He was carried from me. I stood in the midst of that human tide, trembling with hope and fear. Was I ever to see him again?

What a thing a telephone is! The misery and the happiness it can bring. Sometimes I think all the women in the world are sitting with their elbows on little devices waiting, hoping, praying for the 'phone to ring. Days, weeks, I waited like that for Pat to call. From the moment I got home from the celebration until at last I knew it wasn't going to ring for me.

When I reached the Park Street Church Angelo and June were sitting on a box near the curbstone waiting for me. They looked as though they had been drawn through a knot hole.

"Oh, wasn't it glorious!" I said as soon as I reached them. I hoped they would be gone. I didn't want to talk. I just wanted to walk by myself; to think about that meeting; to be quiet. "Did you ever see so much joy in your life?"

"Take it from me, the fellows didn't like it," Angelo agreed.

"Some of them did. I saw them laughing. I saw a big captain cry when his little girl ran screaming into his arms. He liked it. I liked it! It was enough to make a person happy forever to know there was so much love in the world."

"I saw nothing but tired, disappointed people—not even a helmet nor a rifle" said June. "See anyone in particular, Mary?"

"Yes. Guess. Pat Sullivan; remember him?" I said it coolly, but I could feel the red staining my face. Pat's glas was like a living thing on my lips. It seemed they must burn.

Not for worlds would I tell even June about that. No one should know of that trembling moment. It was different from anything that had ever happened to me. It was holy.

All afternoon, all evening, that smile of his, that glad look when he saw me send little quivers of happiness through me. I saw his head towering above the crowd—not bending—when them girls ran to meet him, and I felt exultant. Nothing mattered. It was even a pleasure to wash the dishes.

Did he think about it? Did it mean anything to him? Or had he only been carried away by a sense of loneliness in the midst of so much unshamed emotion?

What was he doing tonight? Would he call me up? Would he ever come to see me. I remembered the days at school—the afternoons when we rode bicycles or played on the sea-saw in our back yards; the little box he had made for my locker; the pair of stilts with the leather stirrups he had did when he finished. Then he he go out with many girls? Did he remember those old days?

Perhaps the Sullivans had made money. They used to be poor as church mice. Pat had to go to work as soon as he finished school. Then his folks packed up and went to St. Louis to live. Pat wrote me a few letters. I forgot to answer the last one and we lost track of each other.

So much might have happened in those ten years! Old man Sullivan, a stingy, hard-fisted man, might have had the air of a man with plenty of money in his pocket—he looked so free, so heedless of consequences. Maybe he had hosts of friends, all of them rich, happy. One of the girls that ran out to meet Pat wore a sealskin coat. He might be having dinner with them; might be laughing and flirting with dozens of girls. The whole city was going mad with joy and here was I, sitting in the little front parlor with me and dad, watching them—waiting.

Their chairs were pushed in front of the grate fire, dad sitting in the old morris chair we got with the trading stamps, ma in a rocker at his side, both of them reading the paper and every once in a while turning to each other with such peace-quiet happiness in their glances. I began to muse about them; to wonder if they had ever loved as I would.

Dad wasn't home much at night now. He was working in the Fore River Shipyards, running up overtime as fast as he could. Dad was fired with an ambition to make up for the long idleness of 1917, when he hadn't earned enough to meet the installments on the flats. He was foreman then for a building contractor and nobody was building. June and I turned over every cent to keep things going. Daddy felt terrible about it. He wouldn't rest until he had returned the payments to us.

"Give us a little tune, Mary!" Dad looked up with the boyish twist in his eyes that ma loved. He had a fine baritone voice. "Play that," he said, as I picked up "When You and I Were Young, Maggie." It was his favorite. He sang it as though his heart was full to the brim. Ma wiped her eyes and laughed as she always sang "Darling Nellie Gray" and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

"You'd think the whole world was listening to him, he put so much fervor in his voice. Then he went back to his paper and put his hand over ma's. I suppose they had lots to think through all the years.

If one could only carry the tenderness of those old melodies into everyday life—if one could only be loved forever the way it is in a song! I pictured myself sitting before a fire with a hand over mine as Pat's. Then I felt ashamed. What right had I to be thinking of him—a little chance meeting like that!

The telephone rang. I ran to it with a start. I took it off of the hook [illegible] before I could say "Hello." Nell's voice laughed over the wires.

"Get your things, Mary. We're coming over for you! Everybody's out. Biggest night outside of New Year's. Dancing on the streets. Don't say you won't come."

"I'd love to, Nell, but——"

I couldn't tell her I was sitting at home just waiting for something that might never happen.

"Don't be a kill joy, Mary. Bill's coming. He asked me to get you."

Bill was Nell's older brother. I thought a moment. It was 9 o'clock. He wouldn't phone now. He might be out there.

"All right, I'll go Nell."

"I'm going out, ma." I called as I ran down the hall to our room. "Nell and Bill are coming for me. We're going over town. City's gone wild—oh gee!"

I dashed cold cream all over my face, took out my best crepe waist and began to comb my hair.

"Everybody's out dancing on the streets! He'll be there," I thought, so excited I kept dropping my comb with every stroke.

"Take your coat," Nell ordered. "We won't be home till morning."

"Don't stay too long, Mary, dear," ma cautioned anxiously. "You have to get up early in the morning."

"Tomorrow's another day, ma!" We went to the Georgian.

"Dance?" Bill asked.

To be Continued Tomorrow.

DAILY SHORT STORY

YOU NEVER CAN TELL

By A. Maria Crawford

"I DO wish that you would quit tossing about the dinner, Ellen, and get dressed before Bob comes with that strange man. He don't care what they have to eat if the girls at the table look pretty and sweet. I've arranged the flowers and mother set the table. What did you do with those pink candles dies? I can't find them anywhere."

"Put them on ice, of course," answered practical Ellen quietly. "They would run down all over the cloth if they weren't chilled thoroughly. Don't worry about the way I'll look! It won't take me five minutes to slip into my little old gray crepe."

Margy looked at her quickly, almost apprehensively. "What's the matter? That doesn't sound a bit like you. You and mother both insisted that I get this new crepe Hemaine while it was such a bargain. And it was a bargain!"

Ellen's little blond sister sighed in self pity. "Seems to me Heb would think of giving me pretty that he knows I can't afford. If he's going to be stingy, well, I won't be any better off married to him than I am now, provided, of course, he expects to ask me to marry him."

The girls' mother entered just in time to hear the last remark. "If he isn't serious, it's high time we were finding it out. He comes every almost every night and asks you two to go out with him."

"He is rather dear about taking dear old Ellen along," conceded Margy, "or at least about asking her to go. She never goes unless we just make her. If Bob would just use his good-looking head a little more he would realize that I would rather have pretties than so many flowers and boxes of candy and books, books, books, all addressed 'To the girls!' If Ellen didn't read those books and tell me the plots, well, I'd be in a pickle sure enough."

Margy laughed a shrill little laugh and patted Ellen on the back. "You're a good scout—the backbone of this family. When I have money," this airily, "I won't forget what you've done for me, old dear."

"When you are married to Heb," said Ellen turning from the kitchen table where she was rolling out flaky pastry for a shortcake. "I'm going to have one really handsome gown, with everything to match, just to tease, for once in my life, how nice I can look. I don't believe that maid is coming to serve dinner. If she doesn't, I'll do it myself."

"Shucks!" complained Margy pettishly. "Everything will be spoiled then. Bob is bringing Arthur Thrane especially for you, I know. And I was counting on this dinner, I homelier scene, smart girls to work all day in offices down town and then have a fine meal and so forth and so on, just to bring things to a climax. We simply have got to get a servant here. It's awful, jumping up every minute to get things. Let mother do it! She won't mind and then you won't break off the conversation abruptly every two minutes, asking if somebody will have something or other."

"Why, of course I'll do it," said the mother, eyeing her younger daughter with appreciative old eyes. "I do really believe that Bob is the chance Ellen and I have been planning for you ever since you were sixteen."

"The Iden, mother!" said Ellen smiling affectionately at her. "As if I would allow such a thing; I'll arrange everything beforehand and with the ten cent, I can manage beautifully without disturbing Margy's conversation in the least."

When the young men arrived, Margy flew back into their bedroom where Ellen was tying the little sash on her plain gray gown. "Quick, get my blue earrings and blue beads, too. Mr. Thrane is wonderful looking, better looking than Bob, and I'll bet he has money bags, too. Yes, you will wear those blue earrings! They just match your eyes."

Although Bob has been calling at the house for several weeks, it was only his second meal with the girls in their home The first time they had had a little maid come in to serve and he had naturally supposed that the servant had cooked the meal. But on this occasion, he knew that one of the three at the table had been chef that night. And after a time something was said about Ellen being so practical.

"I told Ellen tonight when she was working so hard over this dinner that men didn't care what they ate, just so long as the girls looked cool and pleasant—"

"And beautiful," said the stranger, ardent eyes on Margy's yellow head. "You're right about it, of course—you have spoken at the shortcake heaped with whipped cream—"but satisfying the inner man does help along the cheer. I never dreamed when Bob asked me out here that I was in for such luck as this dinner."

Later they decided to motor a bit in Bob's touring car, parked outside. An apprehensive mother whispered warningly in Margy's pretty ear as the happy, fluffy little creature in the shining new gown rather possessively walked along to the car beside Bob's big figure. Bob helped her into the front seat and Ellen as usual took the back. Then Bob proceeded to light a verbal "bomb."

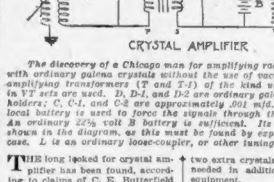
"Take the wheel, old chap!" he admonished Arthur Thrane. "I've been maneuvring for about two months to take this cook out all by myself. Now, this is my golden opportunity, and whoever accused me of failing to push wide open an inviting door?"

Margy, dimpled and glowed, and moved ever so slightly but surely a bit nearer the handsome Mr. Thrane. "Do you like ladies who can't cook?" she asked, coquettishly. And the blind youth of him answered, blithely, "You bet. Money'll hire one for my pretty missus, you know."

And in the back seat, the man who could buy and sell him ten times over, laid a strangely quivering hand over a slender brown one. "You must have put something in that shortcake to bout my courage, Ellen, dear. There's something I want to tell you when we lose little sister and Arthur at the club. You've been my little saint in gray for weeks now. Some day"—there was a quiver in his voice, too—"some day you'll be my lady fair in velvet and ermine and sapphires, blue as your dear eyes."

And on over a ribbon of a road raced the motor, a pumpkin coach and four to quiet, self-sacrificing Ellen Adair.

Crystal Amplification



The discovery of a Chicago man for amplifying radiophone signals with ordinary galena crystals without the use of vacuum tubes. Two amplifying transformers (T and T-1) of the kind usually employed in VT sets are used. D, D-1, and D-2 are ordinary galena crystals and holders; C, C-1, and C-2 are approximately .001 mfd. condensers. A local battery is used to force the signals through the transformers. An ordinary 22½ volt B battery is sufficient. Its polarity is not shown in the diagram, as this must be found by experiment in each case. L is an ordinary loose-coupler, or other tuning device.

THE long looked for crystal amplifier has been found, according to claims of C. E. Butterfield of Chicago, its inventor. This amplifier will considerably increase the intensity of signals obtained by a single crystal detector, and slightly extend the range, it is said.

The chief features of the amplifier are the use of a local battery to push the signal through, and the hook-up of the second amplifier, which is so arranged that the battery is operative on both second and third stages.

The new amplifier may be easily constructed from an ordinary crystal set. Two amplifying transformers, two fixed condensers, and two extra crystals and holders are needed in addition to the usual equipment.

In working the set, the first crystal is the important step. The most sensitive spot should be located on this crystal with great care, preferably by using a buzzer test. The rest of the diagram is then followed, care being taken that the cut-whisker side of the crystal be placed as shown by the arrow head in the diagram.

The battery may be an ordinary 22½ volt B battery. The polarity of this battery is not shown in the diagram, but may be found by experiment. The addition of a potentiometer is advisable, but is not necessary.

Answers to Radio Fans

A. V. M., Boston.—Connect aerial to end of coil and slide to ground, not as you have shown. Connected as you have it, there is less opportunity for varying the coupling.

W. C. K., Lawrence.—The station you heard Tuesday evening was probably WGI, the Amrad station at Medford Hillside.

S. J., Franklin.—The so-called peanut tubes now on the market cannot legally be used as detectors, as they are not licensed under the Fleming patent. This patent covers the vacuum tube using two elements (plate and filament) for detection. The DeForest patents cover the third element (the grid), and do not run out until 1924. The Fleming patent expires Nov. 7th, after which time those manufacturers which are licensed under the DeForest patent may produce tubes for detection. This will include the "peanut" tubes, which now may be used legally only for amplification.

F. L. M., Newton.—Gravity cells are not practical for use for lighting the filament. They might answer, however, for recharging a storage battery.

Radio Pool Formed

The patent rights for the new Armstrong super-regenerative circuit will be taken by the manufacturers who are licensed under the orginal Armstrong patents, according to QST, the organ of the American Radio Relay Leaguve. Following a conference of these manufacturers it was decided to raise a pool of $150,000, which would represent advance royalties on instruments of their manufacture.

Alarm By Radio

A French inventor has perfected a device for ringing an alarm clock by radio. A receiver is devised to respond to a special combination of dots and dashes, and to this combination only. By transmitting this call at a set time each morning, an alarm would be rung in every household properly equipped with a receiver.

WAS A BROKEN-DOWN WOMAN

Then I Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine

Donaldsonville, La.—"I write with pleasure to praise your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—which has done so much to restore my health. I was a broken-down woman until my husband got me a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. I had been having pains every month and at intervals between, was weak and seemed to be smothering at times, but in a week I felt like another woman. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. It did me a lot of good, too. I cannot praise your medicines too much and will be more than glad to recommend them to any woman who is suffering from female troubles. You may print my testimonial, as it is true."—Mrs. T. A. LANDRY, 612 Main St., Donaldsonville, La.

Note Mrs. Landry's words—"as it is true." Every letter recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is genuine. It is a statement telling the merits of these medicines just as the women in your own neighborhood tell each other.

Correct English

1—What is amiss with the sentence, "The colt is treated the same as a horse is treated"?
2—Is it correct to say, "The stock pays 11 per cent"?
3—Improve the sentence, "Yourself and friends are invited to the picnic."
4—What is the meaning of, "She is a bona fide customer?" How is bona fide pronounced?

ANSWERED

1—Since same should not be used for "just as" or "in the same way," say "The colt is treated just as a horse is treated."
2—Per cent. (an abbreviation of the Latin "per centum" should always be written as two words.
3—The intensive pronoun self should not be used except for emphasis. Say, "You and your friends are invited."
4—Bona fide, pronounced bo'ne'fi'de, means "in good faith, "without deceit."

SCANLAN WANTS IRISH DRAMA MODERNIZED

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Walter Scanlan, the Irish singing-actor who comes to the Plymouth in "Maytime in Erin," has made one advance upon the Irish dramas of Andrew Mack and Olcott, in that he has gotten away from costume plays in which the girls all wore costumes unknown in Ireland nowadays and the British soldiers all wore red coats, something they haven't done for many years. He had a hard time convincing producers that the old stuff ought to give way to the march of progress, and he has been justified by results, for "Irish Eyes" his vehicle of last season and "Maytime in Erin," in which he now appears deal with modern Ireland and America. Both plays were written by Edward E. Rose, the veteran Boston playwright.

Scanlan says that the really big Irish drama hasn't been written and if anybody in Boston has it in his possession he would like to see it.

OLD BOY CAN STAND ON HIS HEAD

Arthur Deagon, who plays the fat Irish police captain in "Little Nellie Kelly" and who supplies about 90 per cent. of the laughs in the new Cohan show, admits that he has been knocking them out of their seats for thirty years. And he isn't an old man by any means, despite his white curly locks.

Deagon made his first stage appearance in a show called "The Isle of Champagne," which opened in the two years of the Chicago Fair, about 1892 or 1893, anyway a long time ago. In the same company was Joseph Sheehan, the operatic tenor, and Deagon was his understudy. That was his nearest approach to grand opera. The following year he appeared with Donnelly and Girard in "The Rainmakers" at the Park Theatre.

One of the hits of "Nellie Kelly" is the ability of Deagon to take that globular figure of his and make it turn handsprings. And if you think that is easy to do when you are fair, fat and fifty, try it.

Lottie Gee Is a College Girl

Lottie Gee, the very peppery prima donna of "Shuffle Along," is a college graduate, according to the press agent of the colored show which is jamming the Wilbur. Miss Gee was given a diploma by Benedict College, in South Carolina. The last big colored show which made a hit in New York was the "Red Moon" some years ago. Miss Gee was a member of that company, said to be the youngest member. She toured Europe in 1919 as soloist with the Southern Syncopated Orchestra.

New Lineup at St. James Theatre

All the Scotch and Irish who attained the "Mac" in Helen MacKellar's name will be interested to learn that the new leading lady of the Giles stock company at the St. James is her sister. And sister's name is Evita Nielsen. Apparently this would make Miss MacKeller one of the Scandinavian "mace."

Miss Nudsen is said to be beautiful and accomplished. She is the principal newcomer at the St. James. Walter Gilbert is back, Viola Roach, Mark Kent, Lucille Adams, Ralph Remley and Harold Chase. Edward Darmley, who played opposite Fraucin Larrimore in "Scandal," is a newcomer and so is Houston Richards, the juvenile, a Castle Square graduate who for the past three years has been with Woods. Addison Pitt has succeeded Masson as stage director. Charles Hector's very unusual theatre orchestra has been re-engaged.

We Are Now "Sister City" to New York

Boston has just been promoted from the bushes to be a "sister city" to New York. Colonel Jake Rosenthal announces that while second and third companies of "The Bat" played Chicago and Philadelphia, Boston has been reserved for the original New York company, because Wagenhals and Kemper, producers of "The Bat," consider Boston a "sister city" to New York. When the Chicago and Philadelphia papers hear about this will they have any remarks to make?

Gilda Gray Would Make an Interesting Salome

And now comes Fortune Gallo and says that he will do "Salome" in Boston with Anna Fitziu in the title role. It will be recalled that Mary Garden was announced to play this wicked dancer with the Hammerstein opera away back in 1907, but the local authorities wouldn't let her. Miss Garden did "Salome" in New York again last winter and the critics pronounced the performance tame. Of course Miss Garden was fifteen years older than when she set New York by the ears in the part and possibly had lost a little of her pep. Miss Fitziu is still a young woman. But Gilda Gray, if she could sing, what a Salome she would make.

Dolly Lewis Loves Department Store Girls

Dolly Lewis is perhaps the only woman on the stage who is an honorary member of several associations of department store clerks. Miss Lewis is the auburn-haired, young woman who plays the role of Mamie Leiewer, the New York show girl, in "Love and Kisses," the musical comedy on view at the Wilbur This stire, and although she never serves behind the counter or sold lace or perfumery to a customer, she long ago won the gratitude and affection of those who are employed in the large shops of the country.

About six years ago Dolly Lewis, who noticed conditions in the New York department stores during the holiday rushes, asked Rupert Hughes, the well known author, to write for her a one act play suitable for vaudeville, dealing with the life of a New York shop girl. The result was "Miss 318," a dramatic playlet which Miss Lewis played in vaudeville for two seasons, and which was the cause of many innovations by owners of department stores seeking to make life easier for the young women behind the counter.

Damaged Goods Now a Film

This has been more or less a stormy Summer, and so to keep up the average the management of the Park Theatre will do their part by presenting for a short engagement at popular prices Eugene Brieux's "Damaged Goods," the photoplay Richard Bennett made of the great French dramatist's play aimed at the reformation of the greatest and most unspeakable of social evils. Theatregoers will remember that the tempest this play created on its first presentation here some years ago.

The play ran its course and then to show the stirring stuff of which he was made Bennett converted the drama into a photoplay and gave it to the larger film public. In this form it has been running its course continually ever since.

This will be the first carnival of beauty ever held at Nantasket Beach and one of the most elaborate and unusual affairs ever held on any New England shore. It will be conducted under the auspices of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company and noted theatrical stars will be judges of the contest of beauty.

All girls in New England are eligible for entrance to the beauty contest—excepting, of course, girls of less than twelve years of age. Contestants must leave their names and addresses immediately with the secretary of the Nantasket Beach Beauty Contest at No. 7 Rowes Wharf. Then on Saturday, August 26, the contestants are requested to meet at the Southerly end of Nantasket Beach not later than 3:45 p.m. in costume.

At 4:30 p.m., all those in the contest will pass slowly along the roped-off promenade which will lead from the water's edge to the judges' stand. Either wet or dry bathing costumes may be worn.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE.

An unusually well rounded bill has been arranged by the management of Loew's Columbus for the week's coming week. The program includes a remarkably interesting photoplay, "Field Flowers," in which Gladys Brockwell is featured and a vaudeville bill which well deserves the appellation of an excellent one. The photoplay is an all absorbing dramatic masterpiece and Miss Brockwell is cast in an excellent role of which she makes the most, being ably supported by an admirable cast headed by Stuart Holmes. The Four Hippie Girls who head the vaudeville are a quartette of charming femininity in bright bits of entertainment. Other acts of excellent quality are Eckert and McDonald in "Another Message." Patsy Doyle as "The Sad Man" and several others. A late comedy and local and Pathe News will also be shown.

Other Theatres

LOEW'S STATE THEATRE

Dainty and lovable Viola Dana will top the bill for the coming week at Loew's State Theatre. As is the custom since the opening of this pretentious and capacious theatre, the program includes two feature productions screened for the first time in this city. Miss Dana appears in her latest production "The Five Dollar Baby," picturized from Irwin S. Cobb's famous story published in the Saturday Evening Post. The story abounds in the colorful atmosphere of New York's ghetto and its characters are faithful portrayals. Miss Dana, with her vivacious and infectious personality lends exquisite charm and demonstrates much talent in a role admirably suited to her manifestations. The companion photoplay will offer "The Loves of Pharaoh," a European sensation depicting the story of Pharaoh Amenes, who angered Samlak, king of the Ethiopians by refusing Makeda, his daughter in marriage, and making Makeda's runaway slave, Theonis, Queen of Egypt.

PARK THEATRE

Eugent Brieux's tremendous drama aimed at the reformation of certain conditions that surround the existence of the most noxious of social evils, "Damaged Goods," will be the attraction at the Park Theatre next week. It is safe to say that no play ever written created such a widespread sensation as this drama by the great French playwright. It required a maximum of daring and skill on the part of dramatic skill to venture dealing with this subject. Brieux has been frank with a candid brutality that would be amazing were it not handled with the adeptness of a genius.

STATE BALLROOM

Another portion of the tremendous real estate development of the State Theatre Building on Massachusetts avenue in the Back Bay district of the city, sponsored by Marcus Loew, M. Douglas Flattery and other prominent theatrical men associated with this reputable firm of theatre owners, is the announcement of the early opening of the State Ballroom. This dancing auditoriums located on the ground floor of the Astor street section of the building will rank as the most pretentious and capacious ballroom in New England. It contains nearly 12,000 square feet, affording ample dancing space for five hundred couples.

NANTASKET BOATS

Immense crowds were expected today and throughout the week by the masters of the steamships running from Rowes Wharf to Nantasket Beach. The crest of the vacation and excursion wave reaches Boston during the last two weeks in August, and a large percentage of the vacationists and excursionists are bound for Nantasket.

Today the Nantasket boats run from Rowes Wharf every few minutes. During the week days they run on an hourly schedule.

SOUSA COMING

Miss Marjorie Moody, well known to Boston concert lovers, will be the regular soloist with Sousa and His Band when they come to Boston for two concerts in Symphony Hall on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, September 17th. Those will be Sousa's only appearance in Boston this season, his program including a brand new Sousa march entitled "The Gallant Seventh."

KEITH'S THEATRE

Irene Franklin, the famous creator of "Bert Williams' Wallbrae at Childs," etc., is coming to Keith's Monday. All of her songs are classics of characterization, but her kid songs have a decided edge in the heart of a nation. She is a typical first water American comedienne. Of no mean importance on the program is Joseph K. Watson.

BOSTON THEATRE

"Bulldog Courage" at the Boston Theatre Monday has everything that goes to make a picture. The cast includes Bessie Love, George Larkin, Jimmy Brent and other stars. The scene is laid in the West with red blooded men and courageous women as characters.

"A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM"

The inaugural of the season at the Tremont Temple takes place on Monday evening, August 26, when William Fox will offer for the first time anywhere, his newest photoplay entitled "A Little Child Shall Lead Them." The production reveals a story grippingly human. In the filming of "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," Mr. Fox coralled a company of notable screen actors whose interpretation of the many principal roles ring true to life.

BOSTON AMERICAN

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—August 19, 1922

The area of Boston is 10.5 per cent. of the area of the metropolitan district and the city has 45.09 per cent. of the population.

Another Rate Cut Made by Edison Company

But City of Boston and the Boston American Will Keep Up Fight for More Reasonable Charges

The Boston Edison Electric Illuminating Company has announced another reduction of one-half a cent in its rate to Schedule "A" customers. Schedule "A" customers are the customers paying the highest rates charged by any big company in America.

This is the second reduction in the "A" rate since the Boston American and the city of Boston began the trial to reduce the price of electricity charged to the people of Boston and the metropolitan district. Including the abolition of the Coal Clause, these reductions have saved the people who use electricity in their homes, the "A" rate customers, about a million dollars a year. This, itself, is worth saving.

Although the charge under this "A" rate is made in the name of only 150,000 people in the metropolitan district, the electricity under the "A" rate is being paid for and enjoyed by more than half a million people. It is for these half a million that the city of Boston and the Boston American have been fighting in the more than forty hearings before the Public Utilities Board.

The members of the City Council who voted to join with the Boston American in this contest to reduce the highest rate charged to the people of any great city in America and Ex-Mayor Peters, and Mayor Curley who "carried on," may well be satisfied and proud of the rate of progress, and we hope the people of Boston will appreciate their work and give them credit for it. People not in politics have no idea of the great power which a great public service corporation like the Edison company can exert upon those in public life. This is why it is so necessary that the public should own and operate these great public service companies like the railroads, the street railways, and the gas and electric light companies.

It takes an immense amount of courage for a man in public life to defy or to do anything opposed to what the officers of these public service corporations want. We distinguish always between the interests of the officers of the companies and the true interests of the stockholders. They are not always identical. Officers of these public service corporations more often betray their stockholders than public servants betray the public, a great deal more often, with a great deal more disastrous consequences to the stockholders. We are not now accusing the officers of the Edison company of any such conduct. We make the general remark in passing.

Oftentimes a man in public life who dares thwart the wishes of an agent of a public service corporation takes his political life in his hands. That is the reason why private operation of these great public utilities and government by the people cannot permanently subsist together; like the lion and the lamb, when they lie down together one must be inside the other.

Therefore, we want our readers to remember the service which the members of the city government have rendered to the cause of lower electric light charges through the money they have contributed to fight these extortionate charges.

In the meantime, the fight goes on because the company has not yet reduced its charges enough. We hope it will continue to grow in good sense and continue a little more rapidly to reduce the charge. It has still some ways to go before the charge is reasonable, and the Boston American and the city will stay with it until that point is reached.

Billions for Europe, but Nothing for Our Soldiers

ONE Question for Senator Borah

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Senator Borah, forcible and valuable, one of the few MEN in Washington that can be properly called a "statesman," offers two propositions: First, he says we ought to forgive the debts of the allies, wipe out ten thousand million dollars they owe us.

Second, he says the talk of a bonus for soldiers is preposterous because this is no time to put another load of debt upon the United States.

Will the powerful Senator answer ONE question:

If the United States can't afford to pay three billions of dollars to men that sacrificed jobs and prospects to go to war, how can that same nation afford to forgive ten billions of dollars to oblige friends, now using money borrowed from us to build up forces that some day may threaten us?

Charity should begin at home with nations as well as individuals. If we have ten thousand million dollars to spare, it should be used to pay our own men.

How They Win Strikes

Relying on Blunders of the Strikers

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The Italian government punishes 50,000 railroad men for participating in a general strike. The 50,000 have been suspended or permanently dismissed. That plan has been suggested for the United States, but it wouldn't work here under our laws. However, there ought to be punishment for any worker stupid and heartless enough to leave trainloads of passengers, with whom they have no quarrel, stranded on the tracks with the thermometer near 100. That is not striking—it is brutality and stupidity mixed, and some law ought to prevent it.

The President says workmen have the right to stop working when they choose. But they have no right to betray a trust once undertaken. When they leave the station with a trainload of passengers it is their duty to land them at their destination, as it is the duty of a ship captain to land his passengers.

Owners of railroads, and other big employers intent on destroying unions entirely, or on winning individual strikes, will tell you every time:

"For our victory we rely chiefly on the stupidities and blunders of the strikers. Give them time and they will do something that will turn the public against them."

Intelligent workmen, and leaders with intelligence, know that, unfortunately, there is too often truth in that statement.

The Voice of New England

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Letters

American History

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Crowell certainly crows well in the good old propagandist style. How the English burned Charlestown, the present alleged abode of Mr. Crowell, in the Revolutionary days. Again in 1812 we had quite a scrap and, as before, dear old England was defeated as she was in the Revolution. During the Civil War England saw a chance to disrupt our nation and sided with the South. Mr. Crowell asks a question and answers it himself by saying "No," but readers of American history will be constrained to answer in the affirmative, "Yes." Again in comparative recent years the "Venezuela Affair" nearly caused war between America and England, and at the present time the principal "links" that bind America with England are the "golf links" and the English hyphen monkeys in the knickers or bloomers, don't yer know. The Irish don't want war between the two countries. They only want fair play and the World War ideals put into action, and not left, as up to the present they are, a mere joke or sound, and intend to insist, as they have a right to.

Charlestown. J. J. DUANE.

Traffic Blockades

Editor Boston American:

To relieve the traffic blockades on the busiest crossings of the city of Boston, I would suggest the building of elevated platforms, with stairways (or escalators), for pedestrians to use to cross the streets.

On the corner of Boylston and Tremont, for instance, the best form would connect with the four corners. On each corner have two stairways, one on each street, eight stairways in all, the stairways to have rails in centre and use right side for going up and other for coming down. Time now allowed for pedestrians to cross would then give vehicles extra time. Everybody would benefit and accidents would be avoided.

Owing to the continuous increase in motor traffic, there is need for some form of relief and I think a discussion on the subject in your paper will find the proper remedy. JACOB REISS.

Irish Republic

Editor Boston American:

The Anglo-Irish conference, held in London, was on the distinct understanding: "How Ireland's association with the community of nations, known as the British Empire, can best be reconciled with Ireland's national aspirations."

De Valera and his cabinet agreed to that conference, without reservation or qualification, and delegates were sent to London. There and then the Republic of Ireland was virtually dethroned.

On one occasion, in the Dail, Collins heatedly addressed De Valera: "If you had stood for a republic you could have said so and then there would have been no conference." Dr. McCartan, speaking in the Dail, blamed the Dail cabinet for the treaty. He said the attempt was to place the responsibility on the delegation, but he contended that every member of the cabinet was equally responsible for the treaty signed in London.

In the Dail Eireann, De Valera's amendment to the peace treaty (known as Document 2) was given to the members, and if those critics of the Boston American would procure a copy of it, it might open their eyes.

In that document the powers given to Ireland were just as limited and the reservations favoring England were just as strong as those contained in the agreement made in London. The English King was supreme in the De Valera amendment, as he is in the treaty. De Valera's oath runs: "I . . . do swear to bear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution of Ireland and to the treaty of association of Ireland with the British Commonwealth of Nations, and do recognize the King of Great Britain as the head of the association."

The martyrs of Easter Week 1916 did not die for a fake Royal Irish Republic as proposed in Document 2 by De Valera and his followers. T. M. LUCY.

BIRGE---A ROMANCE OF SCIENCE

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

HOW many birthdays have you?

That Frenchman loved his land well who said that each of us has two countries, his own and France.

In similar sense you may have two birthdays—or more, celebrating your first arrival and another rebirth, or a number.

Be sure that August 19, 1922, will always be a second birthday for Frederick W. Birge, of Middlebury, Vt. On that day, at the ripe age of fifty-three, he "arrived" once more at the New York Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled.

On that very date, when he was fourteen, Birge was stricken with infantile paralysis, the earliest case recorded in Vermont. And now he holds the record, his case being the longest period of paralysis, ending in recovery, in the annals of surgery.

Thirty-nine years later, to a day, Frederick Birge walked again!

When stricken, the boy's legs contracted into the position of one sitting. All efforts to cure him were vain. The case was hopeless.

His wheel chair became his home and his moving throne.

You remember the line: "My mind to me a kingdom is."

That was the case with Birge. His mind and his spirit—and, later, the consecrated scientists—saved him.

The boy's arms, with constant propelling of his chair and pulling himself up by anything he could grasp, developed almost the strength of a gorilla.

His soul was evidently stronger still.

With his sister, he owns a sixty-acre farm in Vermont, producing poultry, dairy products, fruits and berries. Birge learned to pull himself up, hand over hand, into the seat of a wagon.

From this new wheeled throne he sold his produce.

Eight years ago, there was an epidemic of infantile paralysis in Vermont as elsewhere in our States. Vermont established an after-care department.

A visiting nurse from Boston heard of Birge's case. She went to see him. A year ago he was examined by a Boston physician, who asserted that Birge could be cured if he had the services of expert specialists.

Last December he was admitted to the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled. Dr. Armitage Whitman performed the operation and superintended the care which literally put Birge upon his feet again.

After thirty-nine years, a new birthday!

Wait, patient reader, the end is not yet, to the newspaper story reciting this romance of science.

The best of it, bringing its word of encouragement even to you, is in this excerpt of a congratulatory letter sent to the heroic Birge by the general secretary of the United Hospital Fund:

"Your case is unique in the annals of modern surgical science. Even more wonderful than the restoration of your limbs, however, is the manner in which you have preserved your mental poise, your cheerful disposition, and your unshaken confidence in your ultimate recovery."

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOU are a person of many interests and accomplishments, if born today, and one whose life may be anything you will it to be.

Today is one of grave possibilities of peril for all travelers and mariners, and of uncertain augury for general business.

Your ensuing year should be pleasant and untroubled, and generally uneventful.

A child born today should be sturdy in body but of rather undecided intellectual powers, depending on the method of education used. This child will learn only what interests it.

Famous persons born this day:

James Lenox—Philanthropist.

Bishop Henry J. Whitehouse.

John J. P. Odell—Banker.

Henry I. Cobb—Architect.

HOW HIGH ARE YOUR STANDARDS AND IDEALS?

Never let it be laid at your door that you "made sport" of the ideals of another because they did not coincide with your own.

How high are your standards, is the question to ask yourself.

If another's standards are higher than yours, examine yourself.

You say that you are practical and cannot spend your time to be on particular, but it is the particular persons who get to the top usually.

With your acknowledged ideals, how far have you gone toward success in anything that is an unassailable success?

"Unassailable," in that even your enemies cannot question.

If it were not for high ideals the human family would be groveling mediocrity, possibly we might all be savages.

The higher and more unattainable the ideal, the higher you must mount in the scale on which you live.

The tiniest bit of plant life seeks the sun.

Its impulse is to get nearer the source of heat and light and feel the strength of the Great Source, and you ought to have as much intelligence.

SEEN AND HEARD

THERE'S class to one Summer street newsboy. While calling out his papers he stood against a building as a young bootblack shined his shoes.

Here's a question Edison might add to his list. How thick should a one-inch board be sawed? Answer seems obvious, but the obvious is wrong. Boston lumbermen say they should be cut one and one-eighth inches thick, to allow for shrinkage.

Silk prices have been soaring, and at a Washington street store it is stated much of the demand comes from those making fruit juices at home, who buy silk as the best available straining material. This is said to be a recent discovery, as up to the present season filter paper has had the call.

He's a former official of one of Boston's closed banks. Going to a barber shop with his son, the two had haircuts. To payment he offered a check. "Nothing doing," said the barber. Indignant the former banker said: "Don't you know who I am?" "You bet I do," said the barber.

Speaking of fitness in names, hundreds of Quincy residents, when attending church, merely ask the conductor to let them off at Pray street. The church is at the corner.

DR. SAMUEL F. WADSWORTH, noted Back Bay veterinarian, has tackled nearly everything in the animal line, but when a customer brought a youthful skunk to his hospital to be deodorized the doctor was first inclined to run out on him. However, as he was reared in the country and knew something about skunks, he decided to risk the experiment. Seizing the animal in a sudden front attack, he soon had him under ether and then it was a simple matter to remove the two sacs.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE CATERPILLAR

By Garrett P. Serviss

ARE the lower animals only ingenious machines, driven by physical and chemical energies and reactions, or are they conscious creatures, aware of their needs and of their simple doings, and possessing sense suitable to their walk of life and more or less under voluntary control? It is an interesting question, but I do not undertake to answer it; I only offer the following true story.

About four o'clock on the afternoon of July 28 I was reading "The Tempest," while seated on a rock on the stony western shore of Lake Champlain, at Cliff Haven, N. Y., when my attention was attracted to a large yellow-green, bristly caterpillar crawling rapidly over a stone near me, bound, as I afterward particularly took notice, on a west-by-north course.

My first instinct was to put an end to the caterpillar as a potential enemy of mankind. My second thought had more of the unintending malice of a boy. I let the creature crawl upon my cane and then flung it toward the lake. But it escaped a test of its swimming powers by dropping just at the edge of the water.

Falling on its hirsute back was like tumbling in a bed of down, and quickly it squirmed onto its rows of feet and hastened over the pebbles, first steering away from the water and then taking the same course direction with reference to the line of the shore that it had been following at first. It had the air of knowing where it wanted to go and of being in a hurry to get there; so I dropped Shakespeare for the "movies" as represented by this silent actor, whose long, undulating form moved like a flexible train, the head being often on the top of a small stone when the tail was just leaving the hollow behind.

It watched it and followed it, sitting down from time to time on a rock to see it pass. It had a rough way before it, and its scramblings recalled the old song, "Jordan am a hard road to trabble."

It laboriously climbed rocks that were as large to it as houses, or even as precipitous hills to a human being. Yet on it kept, west-by-north, only temporarily wandering amid the crookedness of that intricate landscape. The only thing that ever kept it long from its apparently predetermined course was the temptation to follow every high stone or boulder to its topmost point. But whenever the going was nearly level and unobstructed, westward the mystic star of empire led it on, with always that northward trend. It was the way of the declining sun; was that its compass?

I became deeply interested in the adventures of this humble crawler through the wilderness of its little world. I was almost tempted to speak to it, to see if I might not startle it and cause it to look up, as we would do if Mars should call to us with hollow voice from the sky. What I really did was to occasionally turn a flat stone that it was traversing half way round, or to force it off its course with my cane; but always it got back again to the true direction.

That it had something like memory seemed to be indicated by the unquestionable fact that after I had interfered with it a number of times its periods of rolling itself into a circle and playing possum greatly increased in length.

However—and I wish I had space to describe it—my caterpillar in his wanderings got up on what I dubbed "Spider Rock," and didn't get down again till I helped him, for every time he ventured over the verge on one side or another a spider, whose outlying line it had touched, darted at him, and then darted back again. I cannot say that the spiders hurt or daunted the wanderer, but at any rate he crossed the rock from side to side a dozen times, never venturing down into the spider-haunted caverns until I got him on my cane and lifted him off. I followed and watched him altogether two hours, and when I left him, at supper time, he was still headed west-by-north.

Most Pathetic Sight in the World Is to See a Married Couple Fixing Tires

This is a great time of year for automobile trips, and the average man takes his wife with him. He wants somebody along to change the tires.

Very few men take their wives along for company.

If they wanted company they'd go alone.

The most pathetic sight in the world is to see a married couple trying to fix a puncture—he swears while she cries

One guy was cursing his machine when a minister came along. The minister didn't know whether he was swearing at the car or blessing it.

His wife was pumping up the tire, but he was helping her.

He stood there and told her when she had enough air in it.

He stood next to her with his watch in his hand and told her when it was time for her to rest.

She'd rest five minutes and then she'd wrap his fingers and she'd begin again.

To look at him you'd have thought he was an elevator starter.

After she pumped up three tubes he was so tired watching her that he had to go and sit down.

It's an awful strain for a man to have to watch his wife pump up a tire.

She might get too much air in it and ruin the tube.

Many men are marrying thin women because it's hard for a stout one to get underneath the auto.

Of course, some men are worse than others. One bird was letting his wife push the machine up a steep hill.

He thought he was doing his share by sitting inside and keeping his foot on the brake so it couldn't coast back down.

He didn't want his machine to run over her and puncture the tire on one of her hat pins.

He never worried about getting stuck on the road.

He knew his wife could always push the car to a garage.

He figured that she was equal to five gallons of gasoline.

He thinks that a six-cylinder car is necessary for a bachelor, but a four-cylinder one is enough if you've got a husky wife.

This guy's car hasn't got the same horsepower that it used to have.

She went home to her folks.

Of course, some automobilists are speed demons, and that's the reason so many of them commit bigamy.
